CHILD KILLED, MANY HURT IN OHIO TORNADO

Twister Sweeps Across State into West Virginia, Leveling Structures

DAMAGE TOLL MOUNTS

Eyewitnesses Declare Storm Really Series of Three Small Tornados

Cleveland, Sept. 24—One child is dead, several persons lie seriously injured in hospitals many others are less seriously hurt and property damage estimated at many thousands of dollars has been caused by the peculiar ravages of a tornado which has swept across Ohio into West Virginia, reports today indicated.

The storm broke near Bellevue, a north central Ohio village, injured several persons dangerously, then skipped several counties only to descend again at East Liverpool on the Ohio-West Virginia state line where a victim was claimed.

The Dead

Joseph Beadle, 2, East Liverpool, crushed under demolished home.

Seriously injured:

Mrs. Gladys Beadle, East Liverpool, buried under debris.

James Burnish, East Liverpool, seriously cut by glass.

Thomas Speegle, Huron, crushed by falling chimney.

Mrs. Samuel Bartley, and two children, Huron, badly cut by flying debris.

Mrs. Alfred Huntley, Bloomingville, crushed beneath collapsed garage.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jengo, Perkins, seriously injured.

Mrs. Alfred Wright, Perkins, badly lacerated by glass.

The southern part of Erie County today lies barren of structures. Schools, churches and farm buildings were razed and hundreds of homes either demolished or badly damaged.

Train service on the Pan Handle Railroad has ceased on the Chester-Cumberland division, owing to torn up tracks.

Suffer Heavily

Summitville, Hammondsville and Millport suffered heavily from property damage and floods caused by torrential rains which followed the freak twister.

The storm, which first manifested itself at Bellevue, was thought to have

COUNCIL COMMITTEES TO HOLD CONFERENCE

To Consider Plans for City Hall, City Dump and Traffic Code

Three committees from City Council are planning to meet before the council meeting next Monday evening for the purpose of discussing questions scheduled for action soon.

The building committee has under consideration plans for rearrangement of the city offices to provide room for the new municipal court when it begins functioning on Jan. 1; the ordinance committee is to discuss changes in the city's traffic rules and proposed sale of the city's dumping ground at the corner of Patten and Patterson-sts, and the special committee appointed to attend to plans for redistricting the city into six wards to comply with the state law is to meet to go over maps drawn up by City Engineer T. S. Cathers.

It is likely that several of these matters will be placed in shape for submission to council Monday evening.

DISCHARGED EMPLOYE SLAYS ONE, ESCAPES

Clinton, Ky., Sept. 24—Nathan Unsell, 30, a farm hand, was at large today after he had killed Mrs. Murell Kimlie, 23, and wounded Mrs. O. V. Holder, 30, in revenge for being discharged by Mr. Holder, who employed him. James Holder, 17, overpowered Unsell, but the man escaped before further aid could be called. Warrant for Unsell has been sworn out.

Fully 7,500 Gather At Star's Fight Party To Get Blow-By-Blow Report of World's Heavyweight Bout

TUNNEY wins!

That announcement carried in heavy type across the top of an extra issued by The Star, bellowed from the stage in the Star Auditorium to 2,500 perspiring fans and shouted from a second-story window in the Star building to a milling crowd of 5,500 in N. State-st last night gave evidence of Marion's interest in the world's heavyweight championship bout at Philadelphia.

And the crowds were satisfied, not alone with the outcome of the match, but with the speed and manner in which the blow-by-blow report of the fight was given to them.

Crowds at the Star building began getting the account of the bout only a few seconds after Tunney and Dempsey walked into the ring. And they knew the outcome before the cheers for Tunney had died down in the stadium in rain-drenched Philadelphia.

Quick Work

Five minutes after the close of the bout and before the crowds had dispersed The Star had its extra on the street. Hundreds crowded into The Star office and scrambled for papers. The sale from the office was a record. Newsies, still flushed with the excitement of the contest rushed hither and yon crying their wares, establishing a street sale record for extras.

After thoroughly canvassing the downtown section newsboys rushed into the residential sections. Early retiring householders, awakened from sleep rushed to their doors in scanty attire, purchased an "Extry," and settled back in an easy chair to read of Tunney's success.

8,000 Extras

Nearly 8,000 extras were sold in Marion a half hour after Tunney walked from the ring in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium in Philadelphia wearing the world's championship crown.

And the outcome of this much presaged match was as the majority of Marion sport followers had wished. Nevertheless it came as an upset.

Dempsey was a three-to-one favorite over the fighting ex-marine in the crowds that filled the Star auditorium and blocked N. State-st shortly before the bout opened last night. However, Tunney was the favorite with the crowd as evidenced by the hoarse shouts of approval that went up when Tunney scored rights to the head or lefts to the body.

The crowd favored Tunney to win after the first three rounds, which the new title holder won

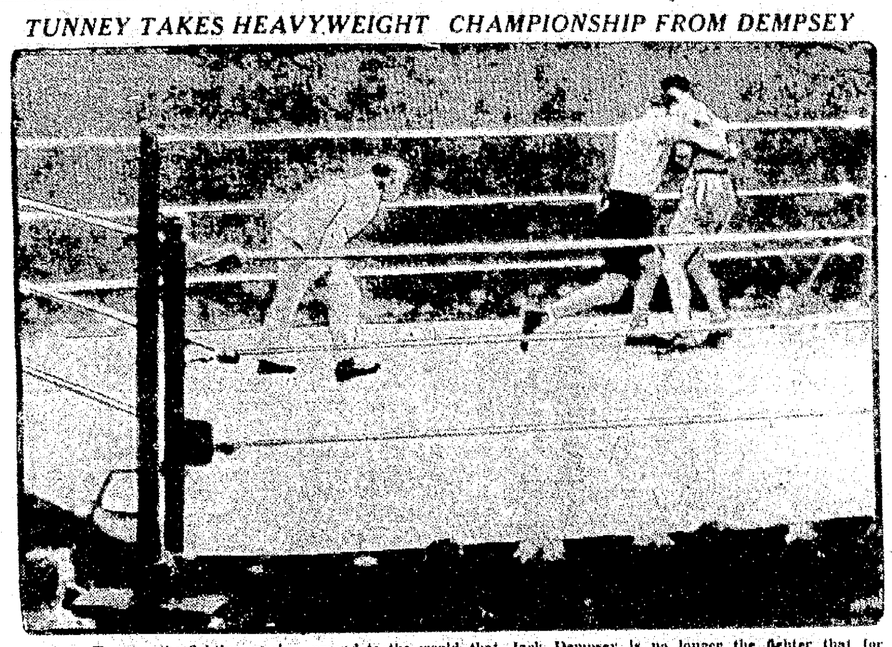
TUNNEY TAKES HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP FROM DEMPSEY



Gene Tunney, the fighting marine, proved to the world that Jack Dempsey is no longer the fighter that for years vanquished all aspirants for the heavyweight title, by beating him decisively in their ten-round bout at the Sesqui-Centennial stadium at Philadelphia. In practically every one of the ten rounds he won the decision of the judges by landing three or four blows to one. The above picture, taken at the ringside, shows Tunney boring into the former champion which helped to win for him the title of heavyweight champion of the world.

LOGAN GAS CO. FINISHES ITS RATE ARGUMENT

Attorneys Tell Commission They Are Ready for Final Proceedings

The Logan Gas Co., has completed the submission of evidence in support of its side of the controversy over increased gas rates in Marion and more than 70 other Ohio communities, according to a letter received today by City Solicitor Grant E. Mouser, Jr., from the State Utilities Commission. The letter stated that attorneys for the gas company have announced that they have no additional data or testimony and are ready for the final proceedings.

An application has been filed by cities protesting against the rates asking for more figures and information on the gas company's receipts and expenditures. They seek to obtain this data either by having it produced voluntarily by the company or from an examination of the company's books by W. H. Weiss of Cincinnati, engineer employed by the cities to handle the technical features of their investigation.

Hearing Wednesday

Hearing on this application will take place before the commission at 9 o'clock next Wednesday morning. Should the cities' request be granted, gathering of additional data will proceed at once and the case will then come up for final hearing early in November. Final decision on whether the gas rates will remain in force or be cancelled is not likely before some time in December, as all of the figures and testimony submitted by both sides will probably be gone over by the state commission's force of experts.

City Solicitor Mouser, who is directing the case for the various cities protesting against the rates, has notified other solicitors associated with him in the fight of the date for the hearing next week. He will appear before the commission and submit arguments in favor of granting the cities' application.

The rates in dispute are now temporarily in force, the gas company having filed bond to guarantee refunds to consumers in case it is defeated in the controversy.

FORT WAYNE WOMAN IS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. C. E. Johnson Sustains Two Fractured Ribs West of City

Mrs. C. E. Johnson, Fort Wayne, Ind., is today suffering in City Hospital from injuries sustained in an auto accident, nine miles west of Marion on Harding Highway, late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Johnson suffered two fractured ribs when she was thrown to the ground after the Buick touring car in which she was riding was hit by a Chrysler sedan, driven by Eli Main, of Lima.

The accident occurred at a sharp turn in the road. The Buick car was being driven west and the Chrysler east. The Johnson car driven by one of Mrs. Johnson's sons was hit in the left rear wheel. The impact threw Mrs. Johnson to the road.

She was taken to the Hospital in a passing automobile.

Dempsey Is Heart-Broken After Night of Restless Sleep; Face Cut, Bruised

Proud, Sensitive Ex-Champion Inconsolable Figure; No Admiring Friends or Messenger Boys Rushing Into Room With Congratulatory Messages; Has No Alibi

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

Philadelphia, Sept. 24—"I'm heart-broken, simply heartbroken."

In a voice breaking with emotion, Jack Dempsey, his grim dark face cut and bruised, slowly spoke these words today after he arose from a restless night's sleep with the poignant realization full upon him that he had lost his title as heavyweight champion of the world to Gene Tunney, the handsome "fighting marine."

The proud, sensitive Dempsey sat on the edge of his bed in his hotel room, an inconsolable figure—his soul in the very depths.

Not since the fateful day nearly seven years ago when he slugged the giant Jess Willard to the floor in that ring in Toledo, had Dempsey known such a day as this.

"Tunney Beat Me"

An ex-champion — no admiring friends swarming around him and slapping him on the back. No messenger boys rushing in with telegrams of congratulations. Only a few friends left, apparently. Good old Mike Trant, the big Chicago detective and the faithful little trainer, Jerry the Greek. Forgotten seemingly, were Dempsey's great deeds against such men as Luis Firpo and Georges Carpentier. Just an ex-champion.

Another super-man faded out of his golden frame.

"Tunney beat me—he beat me fairly and squarely" Dempsey said slowly, and one thought, pathetically. He met me at my own game—slugging—and he whipped me at it."

A pause, obviously the dethroned champion didn't want to talk. Then:

"I haven't any alibi. I just do not know what was the matter with me. I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight—a terrible fight."

No one who watched the once great

GENE TUNNEY TO FIGHT AGAIN NEXT SUMMER

Dempsey or Loughran Will Be Given Chance, but Not Harry Wills

Philadelphia, Sept. 24—Gene Tunney's next fight will take place next summer. The new world's heavyweight champion may fight either a return match with Jack Dempsey, whom he dethroned last night, or Tommy Loughran, the pride of Philadelphia.

Harry Wills, negro contender, will not be given a "shot" at Tunney. This was the announcement this afternoon of Tex Rickard, promoter.

PLANNING COMMISSION APPROVES TWO REQUESTS

Plans Call for New Grocery and Filling Station Addition

Two requests for permits to construct buildings to be used for business purposes were approved by the City Planning Commission at a meeting held Thursday in the office of Mayor Hazen. Plans submitted by L. E. Adams for a two-story structure on Senate-st, to replace a one-story building now occupied by a grocery, were approved, and similar action was taken on the application of John A. Kerlin, who is arranging to construct an addition to his filling station on S. Prospect-st, near the corporation line. He expects to operate a grocery story in the addition.

Report of the Planning Commission's action will be filed with City Council, Monday evening, favorable action by that body being necessary before construction work can proceed.

The Adams building on Senate-st will be of frame construction and measure 26 by 40 feet. There will be a five-room flat on the second floor and the ground floor will be used for the grocery now operating at the same location.

NATION'S ENTRY INTO COURT IS FORESTALLED

President May Have To Resubmit Question to Senate; Reservation Evaded

Washington, Sept. 24—America's actual entrance into the World Court has been projected into the dim and misty future, if it has not been forestalled entirely, by the action of the powers at Geneva in evading the fifth of the senate's reservations.

This represents the consensus of opinion in Washington, pro-court and anti-court alike. The irreconcilables are elated over the refusal of the powers to accept the fifth reservation, which states that the World Court may not give an advisory opinion in any case in which the United States has or claims to have an interest, without the consent of this government being specifically given. The pro-court forces are correspondingly glum and yet withal rather helpless to remedy it.

If the powers abide by the decision reached at Geneva and there is every reason to believe they will, the only way the United States can enter the court is for President Coolidge to submit the question to the senate.

The irreconcilables say the administration will not dare adopt such a course for the pendulum of senate opinion has swung so far away from the court since last January that it is doubtful if a majority could be mustered today in favor of it, let alone the two-thirds necessary to ratify.

RACE RIOT REPORTED IN MIAMI NEGRO SECTION

20,000 Colored Persons Live in District; All Police Called Out

Miami, Fla., Sept. 24—At 1:45 o'clock this afternoon all police and details of militiamen were rushing to the negro section of Miami, where a race riot was reported to have broken out.

More than 20,000 negroes live in the section where the trouble was reported. A cordon of police and militamen was thrown around the northeast section of the city, while Police Chief H. Leslie Quigg made his way to the center of the disturbance.

MERCURY DROPS, SNOW FALLS AT EVANSTON, ILL.

Cold, Driving Rain Accompanies Lower Temperatures at Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 24 — The predicted cold wave, whirling out of the northwest where below freezing temperatures were reported struck Chicago and this section of the mid-west with a vengeance today.

Snow fell for two minutes in Evanston, a suburb, according to an official report of the United States coast guard station. The thermometer registered 56 degrees, a drop of 20 degrees since early this morning.

In Chicago proper a cold, driving rain continued as the temperature fell.

MOOREHAVEN'S DEATH TOLL TO REACH 300

Disease and Illness Infest City; Identification of Bodies Impossible

Moorehaven, Fla., Sept. 24—Moorehaven's death list will reach 300, although the exact number of deaths will never be known because of the multitude buried beneath floating debris that was swept through this little city of 1,500 when the dikes holding back the treacherous waters of Lake Okeechobee broke during the recent hurricane.

No attempt will be made to identify the remainder of the dead as the bodies are so decomposed, distinction between white and black can not be made.

Disease and sickness infests the waters floating through the streets. More than 100 bodies have been buried after being embalmed on boxes, counters and improvised tables in what used to be the postoffice of the thriving little city. Morticians worked in water waist deep. The remains of those found will be burned.

Military authorities in charge of the devastated area have ordered everyone out of the former city because of the danger of disease. Although several families have refused to leave, they will be forced out if conditions become worse, according to the commander of the area. No one is permitted to enter Moorehaven without a permit.

PRISONERS HEAR REPORT BY RADIO

Columbus, Sept. 24—Although hidden away from the world behind the drab walls of the Ohio state penitentiary here, sitting or lying on their bunks in darkness, at least 200 inmates of the prison heard the returns from the ringside in Philadelphia and today the fight was the topic of the hour.

Returns came by radio for a limited number of sets are permitted in the prison, but loud speakers were taboo after lights were turned off at 8 o'clock. Most of the owners of sets have earphones and are permitted to lie in bed listening as long as they please.

Some of the sets were of seven and eight tubes, others smaller, while about half were of the crystal type, picking up the local stations.

COUNTY TO PAY PERSONAL TAX ON $17,135,940

Valuation Does Not Include Public Utility Property, Abstract Shows

$93,360 BOOST IN YEAR

Returns from State Utilities Commission Expected To Reach $14,000,000

Total valuation of Marion County personal property for taxation this year is $17,135,940.

The figures were obtained from the Marion County 1926 abstract for personal property, just completed by clerks in the office of the county auditor.

The abstract, however, does not contain the values returned by the State Utilities Commission, which usually total from $13,000,000 to $14,000,000. Returns from the utilities commission were not yet available and will be added when received here.

Last year, the total valuation of personal property in the county, state utilities commission returns deducted, reached $17,220,300, or $83,300 below figures recorded this year.

The abstract records the value of all personal property of every tax payer in the county. Possessions included are horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry mules, motor vehicles, farm machinery, office furniture, household furniture, farm products, bonds, stocks, and many other similar articles.

City Valuation

Personal property of taxpayers of Marion City alone is valued at $11,231,740 this year as compared with $11,309,400 last year, according to abstracts on record in the county auditor's office.

Of this amount, Marion banks returned values totaling $1,130,290. Other corporation returns amounted to $5,062,500. Individual returns reached $4,438,950.

One hundred and twenty-four corporations filed personal tax returns in Marion City and 6,562 individual blanks are on file.

The abstract shows that the value of automobiles and other motor vehicles in Marion totals almost a million and a half dollars. The exact amount given in the report is $1,494,120, of which

SPECIAL APPEAL FOR FLORIDA HELP RECEIVED

Telegram from Fort Lauderdale Asks Marion To Aid Storm Sufferers

A special appeal for relief was received in Marion today in a telegram from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., signed by the presidents of the Exchange, Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary and Civitans clubs. It was addressed to the president of the Civitans club and as there is no such organization here, the telegram was turned over to Miss Nina Doughty, president of the Marion Chapter of the Red Cross. The appeal reads as follows:

"The city of Fort Lauderdale has suffered greatly from the tropical hurricane. There are over 1,000 inhabitants sick and injured, with limited hospital facilities. There are more than 5,000 homeless and destitute. Immediate financial assistance is needed to prevent further suffering and loss of life. This appeal is made to your club and the inhabitants of your city to contribute and forward funds to the city treasurer of Fort Lauderdale, Fla."

Miss Doughty has forwarded a telegram in reply informing the Fort Lauderdale club officers that all relief funds here are being handled through the National Red Cross but that she would make their plea public in order that it might come to the attention of any Marion citizens or organizations desiring to make special contributions to Fort Lauderdale.

REPORT COUPLE HAVE CONFESSED IN AIMEE CASE

Mysterious "Miss X" and "John Doe Martin" Arrested in San Francisco

BOTH IDENTIFIED, CLAIM

Pair Also Names Los Angeles Attorney, Detective in Alleged Plot

Los Angeles, Sept. 24—The Los Angeles Examiner, in a copyright story from San Francisco, says today that the mysterious "Miss X" and John Doe Martin have been arrested in San Francisco in connection with the conspiracy charges lodged against Aimee Semple McPherson, famous Los Angeles evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy.

Long sought in connection with the alleged attempt of Mrs. McPherson to produce a "Miss X" as the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple, "John Doe" Martin has been identified as Harry Melosh, 35-year-old Los Angeles clothing salesman, and "Miss X" as Mrs. Babe Daniels, 20-year-old Chicago girl.

Claim Confessions

The pair, according to the story, have signed confessions naming Mrs. McPherson, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, her mother, a Los Angeles attorney and a well-known Los Angeles detective as the central figures in the scheme to clear Mrs. McPherson's name. Mrs. Daniels put a new slant to the case when she declared that she signed the famous "Miss X" affidavit in the presence of Mrs. McPherson in the office of a Los Angeles attorney and not at Salinas, Cal., as was formerly believed.

Melosh, the story said, readily confessed to his part in the alleged affair, saying that if Mrs. McPherson "hadn't been so stingy," she "might still be in the clear."

He declared that Mrs. McPherson and the lawyer paid him at various times a total of $450 and promised him that he wouldn't want for money as long as he lived if the "deal" went through.

Witnesses Arriving

With at least a dozen witnesses arriving here from Carmel, Salinas and Arizona to testify at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. McPherson, her mother and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Sellaff, and with the district attorney's office announcing that sensational new evidence had been unearthed, the conspiracy charges against the trio were boiling over today.

Mrs. Wiseman Sellaff, through the medium of affidavits, charges that Mrs. McPherson offered her a sum of money to produce a "Miss X," who was to be

DAUGHERTY DESTROYED RECORDS, SAYS BROTHER

Government Bases Much of Case on Cashier's Check Deposited in Ohio Bank

New York, Sept. 24—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, destroyed the records of his account in the Midland National Bank at Washington Courthouse, according to his brother, Mal Daugherty, who testified today at the trial of the former cabinet member and Colonel Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Harry M. Daugherty also destroyed the accounts of the late Jesse Smith and of Mal S. Daugherty, the bank president testified.

Mal S. Daugherty was called to the stand as a witness for the government this morning. The government bases much of its case on a cashier's check deposited in Daugherty's bank by King. The ledger sheets recording the deposit are missing. Harry M. Daugherty and Jesse Smith both had accounts in the bank.

"What did you do with these missing records?" Mal Daugherty was asked.

"I gave them to my brother, Harry M. Daugherty," he answered.

"Did he tell you what he had done with them?"

"He told me he had destroyed them," the banker replied.

Buckner, then disclosed that Mal Daugherty had testified in 1925 before the federal grand jury that the records were "missing."

"Did Harry tell you how he destroyed these records?" asked Buckner.

"He told me he burned them," was the reply.

The witness than admitted, under questioning, that before Harry destroyed the account records the former attorney general and the witness went over the accounts "twenty to twenty-five times."

PENNSYLVANIA TUNNEL CO, WORTH $120,000,000

Washington, Sept. 24—The Interstate Commerce Commission today placed a tentative valuation of $120,000,000 as of June 30, 1918, on the Pennsylvania Tunnel Terminal Co. in New York City.

A tentative valuation of $43,036,236, as of June 30, 1918, was placed on the Western New York and Pennsylvania Railway Co. Both properties are under control of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Marion Woman Gets Letter From Mother In Florida Describing Storm Damage

One of the first letters to arrive in Marion from one of the Marion storm victims was written by Mrs. A. L. Stout at her home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Mrs. Stout gives an account of the storm, which forced her husband, sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Laporte of Bellefontaine, who were their guests, and herself to abandon their home. The letter was received here by Mrs. Stout's daughter, Mrs. C. R. Frye, 709 Woodrow av.

"I hardly know how to begin but we have so much to be thankful for and that we are safe and not one of us hurt. Our house and all in it is ruined and unroofed and is standing in several feet of water. We barely were able to get out of the house with what we had on. We were able, however, to get our pocketbooks.

"We went to the Denton House, there was no one living there, and soon that house began to fall. The plastering fell and the water arose to eight inches high on the floor. "The new garage is all that saved our house from being swept entirely away. The wind blew the top off the garage and part of it fell on Smith's car, but ours is not hurt. ROOM NO. 34 WINNER OF SCHOOL CHANNEL SWIM

Contest Held in Conjunction with Quiver Subscription Campaign Ends

Room, No 34, headed by Erwin H. Shade at Harding High School, was the winner in the English Channel swimming contest held in connection with the Quiver Junior subscription drive this week.

The room subscribed 130 per cent in the drive. Each student in the room subscribed to the paper and in addition obtained subscriptions outside of the class. A pencil-sharpener was the prize given to the class.

The close of the campaign today brought the total number of subscriptions to 688 for Harding High School, Central and Vernon Heights Junior High Schools.

Payments of the subscriptions will be taken the first of next week, according to Richard Parish, business manager of the paper. All payments must be made before the students can obtain the next issue of the paper, Thursday.

To Name Staff

The Quiver staff will be selected before the next issue, Editor Oscar Hittenrauch stated today. It will be selected from the two journalism classes at the school by Mr. Hittenrauch and Miss Lucile Foreman, faculty critic of the paper. The staff elected for the weekly paper will also have charge of the Quiver Annual which will be published at the close of the school term in May.

These Characters In "Roberta Risks It," The Star's New Serial Story

ROBERTA

This is Roberta, diminutive, independent, adventurous and modern. But still, she's a "damsel in distress."

Her father has millions. She, too, might have millions if she'd "behave herself," according to her father's notion of what "behaving" means. But he is impossibly old-fashioned, and Roberta simply won't permit herself to be treated as a hot-house beauty. She is a fair success in her own way—but she is absolutely helpless.

"PIGGY"

From the first he suffered because his doting mother had given him two obviously impossible names. His initials are "P. G." and he prefers to be called "Piggy," strange as that may seem.

Piggy was a football hero in college and as soon as he got out of school he began to get entangled in all sorts of perfectly innocent but sensational escapades that he enjoyed. His father, however, felt differently about it. This was no way for the son of a Big Business man to behave.

So Piggy tried to reform. And in the act of reforming he met Roberta.

FATHER

This stern gentleman is "Piggy's" father. He believes in Big Business, the bigger and busier the better. He thinks his son is mildly insane because he gets into so many absurd—if heroic—situations. Also he suspects "Piggy" because the young man doesn't consider business a lofty sort of religion.

Under the circumstances there is bound to be trouble.

MARION COUNTY GIVES $334 TO FLORIDA FUND

Contributions Deposited in City Banks Total $184; Organizations Donating

Marion's contribution to the Florida relief fund has greatly increased since Thursday, the total from all sources reported to local Red Cross headquarters at noon today having reached $334. Included in this amount is $184 left at the five local banks, which have been designated as places where citizens may deposit voluntary donations. These collections totalled only $35 in Thursday's report.

The latest donation from lodges and other local organizations came from Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks which sent $25 to grand lodge headquarters in response to an appeal from Grand Exalted Ruler Grasselow. Action on behalf of the local organization was taken by Grant E. Mouser, jr., exalted ruler, and John M. Brigel, secretary.

Large Gifts

The remainder of the $334 representing Marion's total contribution to the relief fund thus far is made up of $100 from the American Legion and $25 from Buckeye Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Miss Mina Doughty, local Red Cross secretary, plans to forward a check to National Red Cross headquarters at once for the $184 deposited at the local banks. She will continue such remittances as additional funds are contributed.

Miss Doughty reported today that the local Red Cross once had been instrumental in establishing communication with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Baker, former Marion residents who live at West Palm Beach. A telegram inquiring about the Baker family's welfare was sent to the Florida Red Cross at the request of Mrs. Baker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Woessner, of Pleasant st. An answer was received stating that both Mr. and Mrs. Baker are safe.

Miss Doughty has also received a message from G. A. Betts, of Coral Gables, Fla., former student at Ohio Northern University in Ada, who is a close friend of the Doughty family. Mr. Betts describes the tremendous havoc wrought by the storm in Hollywood. The damage in Coral Gables was not as extensive as was first reported.

Mrs.—C. E. Wenninger of 600 Uncapher-av, has received word from her cousin, Mrs. Frank Randhammer, of Miami, stating that both Mr. and Mrs. Randhammer are safe but that the storm unroofed their home and destroyed a large part of their furniture. The Randhammers are former Bucyrus residents.

Restaurant Damaged

The restaurant owned by Charles Frank, former Marion resident, in Clearwater, Fla., was not damaged, according to a message received from him by his mother, Mrs. Mame Herr Frank, 214 W. Church-st. Mr. Frank states, however, that the restaurant of Fred Schaeffer, another former Marion man, was badly damaged and has been closed for repairs.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Jury, of West Palm Beach, are uninjured, a telegram bearing this news having been received today by W. W. Woodruff, 684 E. Church-st, brother of Mrs. Jury. Mr. Jury was formerly yardmaster for the Erie Railroad Co. here.

Daily Proverb—"A common jester may have wit, but not wisdom."

Four hundred dead in Florida; 200 dead in Paraguay. The storm king is collecting a frightful toll.

Of course! Everybody not only knew in advance how the fight would result, but today also frankly admits it.

An exchange tells of the American thousands who go to Europe to get a drink. Stuff and nonsense! They go to Europe to live after they get the drink.

Get the thing right. The report is that Secretary Mellon was cheered by his European trip, not by Europeans.

Mussolini says he is protected from assassination by the stars. If he refers to his lucky stars, he should get next to the fact that they are being greatly overworked.

Gertrude Ederle is said to be receiving $5,000 for each professional appearance made by her. And yet some people will question that education pays!

Aimee McPherson says she would be an ass to surrender the $600,000 worth of property held by her and her mother, and we feel free to say that we do not anticipate ever hearing that Aimee will ever be termed anything like that for any folly in matters of finance.

The Boston Transcript says "Lady Astor will soon be on her way back to be the Pat Harrison of British politics." And yet we complain of the treatment of Americans over in France!

It is useless for the Detroit News to speculate, as it has been, on the probable number of the Atlantic City "bathing beauties" who rushed right home to help their mothers wash the breakfast dishes. "Bathing beauties" are not built that way.

A New Heavyweight Champion.

"Many things are scheduled for this day, and unexpected things may happen," said Arthur Brisbane in yesterday's Star. "But the only really important news for more than half of 120,000,000 Americans is that two prize-fighters are to meet in Philadelphia, where the Declaration of Independence was signed, and decide, with their fists, which of the two is nearer to the orang-outang." And the way the impulsive Arthur put it, one might assume that he has some prejudice against the orang-outang.

But let us drop Arthur.

The honors of the ten-round bout went to Gene Tunney, the former marine. Jack Dempsey lost, and we have a new heavyweight champion of the world.

For two or three months past the newspapers' sport pages have been filled with advance stuff on the fight and the fighters. Columns upon columns, and pages upon pages have been run. There were some facts, but fancies and imaginings predominated. Perhaps of all the matter run, none came nearer sizing up the relative merits of the fighters and the classification of the coming fight than Walsh's summing-up in Wednesday's Star, in which he characterized one as "such a poor fighter and the other liable to be worse."

"That is a terrible indictment to draft against a $2,000,000 house," he said, "but the fact of the matter is that Gene Tunney never licked a good man and doesn't figure to change his style now and Jack Dempsey is a man without legs—a good guy when he had them. But far from the man who cut Willard into human hamburger at Toledo seven years ago. * * * * *

"Dempsey's legs have gone. Any one with any sense knows that now. On the surface, he is a man in perfect physical condition. His wind is good, his eye clear, his actions those of a man who has reached the pinnacle of physical training. But he is a slightly elderly gent, as we figure things in this racket, and the first thing to show this condition is a pair of legs that refuse to carry their master in the style to which he is accustomed.'

Walsh did not pick the winner, but he pointed out the weakness of Dempsey, and the attention given Dempsey's legs between rounds shows that his diagnosis of the case was right. Jack had the courage, he had the heart, but he hadn't the physical vigor of the Dempsey of old. His legs were gone, his speed was gone, some of his hitting power was missing, his timing was not so good and precision in placing his cuts and blows was lacking. Eight of the ten rounds were Tunney's, and honors in the other two were even the round-by-round story of the fight tells us. The two hit each other almost at will and yet neither floored his opponent, much less scored a knock-out. Tunney proved much better than was thought and Dempsey much worse.

Had Dempsey been able to come back after three years of practical idleness it would have been something nearly related to a miracle. The day of miracles, we are told, is past. He didn't, and the fine, upstanding young marine that was, who all along has had the good will and best wishes of the great majority, is now the heavyweight champion of the world.

The Horror Which Is Russia.

The situation of the million Communists who have dominated Russia since the overthrow of the monarchy and the assassination of Czar Nicholas and his family is not so serene as they would have the world believe. The soviet leaders see an ever-present menace in the Russian peasantry. The specter of a possible end as horrible as that which came to the Russian royal family is constantly before them. They realize, as Lenine came to realize before them, that Communism will work in theory only, a realization which is said to have hastened Lenine to his death. They have sought to change their program and thus to appease the citizenship. They have permitted small shops and businesses to be operated under private control. They have recognized private ownership in a way. They have a program of education. They had done much to pacify the workers, only to realize that to the menace of the peasantry has been added the menace of the workers.

Russian workers are dissatisfied. Wages are no higher than under the regime of the czars, and, when all is said, wages largely determine the feeling and attitude of the workers.

Speaking of conditions in Russia, F. J. Ramey, an American Y. M. C. A. worker who has but recently returned from that land of the unfortunate, says in an interview:

"There is no personal, political or religious freedom in Russia. The espionage system is worse than under the czar. Banishment to the exile regions of Siberia is still the punishment for political offenses. I was told that these regions now contain more prisoners than in czarist times. All publications are under the thumb of the Bolsheviki.

"Although the Communist party numbers less than a million members, it rules absolutely. All nominations to office are made by the party. Voters can only choose between two Communists.

"From my personal viewpoint, one of the greatest offenses of the soviet is the teaching of anti-religion. Children are taught atheism in the national schools and anti-religious posters of the most bitter nature dot the bulletin boards of the country."

And such are the "ideal" conditions the red propagandists, the parlor pinks and the yellow apologists of the two would have introduced into this country. Such is the government that would have us give it recognition that it may be freer to disseminate its doctrines here and make in this land a governmental horror such as misrules the millions of Russia.

We do not intend sacrilege when we say that the only explanation that civilization can offer for the existence of Russia today is that the world may have an awful example—a concrete example—of the horror of Bolshevism and all the teachings and tenets of Bolshevism—a horror such as will impel the world to wipe it out.

Al. Smith has decided to accept the Democratic nomination for governor of New York, but the Republicans of the Empire state haven't yet determined upon the political ox—or was it sheep?—they will lead to the slaughter.

If an inquring turn of mind were the only qualification necessary, Senator Jim Reed would have that Democratic presidential nomination just as good as cinched.

There is an old proverb to the effect that "It is an ill to take out of the flesh that which is bred in the bone," but a lot of the well-rounded girls who are sacrificing their health by reducing do not appear to have heard of it.

A New York ragman has gone out of business, explaining that the men keep their worn-out shirts and underwear to wash their automobiles and the women do not wear enough clothes at a time to make a sheet of note paper. The march of progress is certainly adding to life's problems!

Some days have passed and yet we have had nothing to indicate with what movie concern "Miss America" has signed up, nor do we know her preferences in cold creams and face powders!

The fight being a thing of the past we came mighty near remarking that now is the psychological time for getting down to business again. And then we remembered the world series.

It is to be hoped that Senator Caraway will refrain from shooting any more charges at the French on the subject of insults to the American dead until he has personal assurance that his gun is loaded.

The Cincinnati Enquirer remarks that "Senator Borah has not started his boom for the presidency yet, but he doubtless has the gas tank filled, the engine running and the garage doors open." We sincerely hope the Enquirer isn't endeavoring to give out the intimation that William is the kind of a man who will wait for somebody to give his flivver a push.

Vagrant Verse.

LYRICS FROM THE DARK.

Caged birds are kept in darkness, that their song
Richer in molten melody may roll
From swelling throats, when they are loosed at last
Into the sunlight . . . . . Can it by thy soul,
O dark-skinned singer, deeper glows within
For all the darkness, as of Stygian night,
Enveloping so long thy shackled race,
Whose thoughts alone dared an attempted flight?

O dark-skinned singer, in a night-dark world,
Ravished of liberty and reft of hope,
Held thou this golden gift within thy breast
E'er yet thy fettered hands had dared to grope?
And, even in the darkness, did'st thou light
Thy little candle, tapering up to God,
That thou might'st not yield utterly beneath
The oppressor's scorn, more potent than his rod?

If now the half-gods can inspire thee so,
In this half-light of freedom, that thy song
Beats at the bars of heaven with fragile wings,
Bearing forgiveness for thy piteous wrong—
How shall thy song ascend and sweep the skies,
How shall thy trumpet notes to heaven roll,
When justice lifts, at last, her torch, and man
Grants thee not half thy freedom, but the whole!

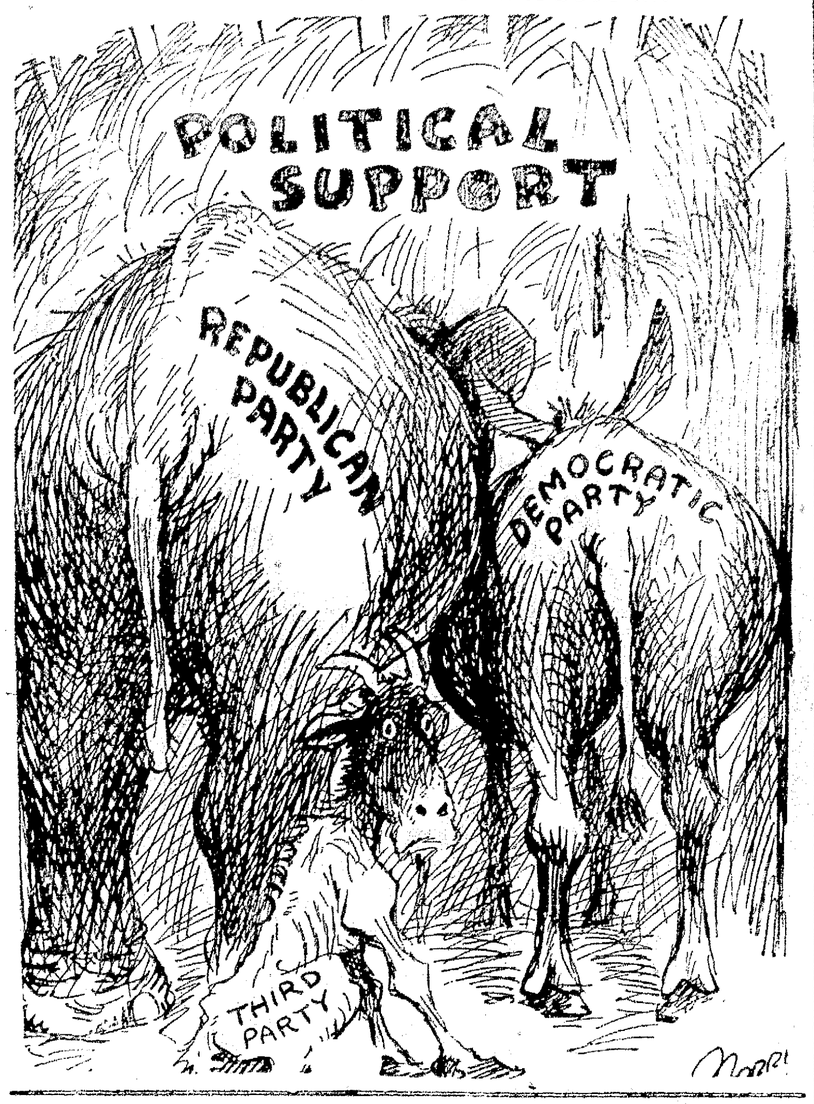
THE GOAT: "HOW AM I GONNA BUTT IN?"



Keep Medicine Bottles Marked.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Never keep a bottle in your home unless it has a label telling clearly what it contains.

I was in a home the other day when a sick man asked to have his back rubbed with liniment. He told where the bottle could be found. His daughter ran back and forth with a dozen bottles or so, each containing some sort of "medicine," but nobody could be sure which bottle held the liniment.

It is bad enough to keep unlabeled bottles containing substances for external application. Nothing worse than a severe burn is likely to result from the use of the wrong thing.

But it is dreadful to think of the serious and even fatal effects of taking the wrong medicine. These accidents are like the too-common deaths from the discharge of firearms which they "didn't know were loaded."

Memory is too uncertain to be trusted. Bottles, unless they are labeled, are too much alike to be used as containers for poisons. It is easy to make a mistake.

I know a doctor who has to be fed through an opening in his stomach. His gullet was burned and is closed up because he drank household ammonia instead of aromatic spirits of ammonia.

Another doctor friend had a sore eye. On the mantel-shelf was a bottle of eye drops—also a bottle of spirits of camphor. Neither one had a label, and the doctor was trusting to memory to tell him which. The bottles looked alike, but the doctor was so confident he was right that he didn't stop to smell even. The camphor was squirted into the eye.

Another doctor had trouble with his eyes and decided to inject into them a solution of argyrol. By mistake he used iodine, similiar in color, and contained in an unlabeled bottle. He has a blind eye now.

If doctors make such mistakes, what can you say about lay people who permit bottles and packages of unknown liquids and pills and powders to accumulate about the house? I beg of you not to do it.

The very minute you fill a bottle with anything label it. Write clearly and distinctly. Renew the label when it gets stained.

Medicines, to be of value, must be fresh. If kept too long they get stale and germs may multiply in them. Salves and ointments, particularly if they have animal or vegetable grease as a base, will become rancid.

It is a crime against your precious eyesight to use eye-drops which were prepared a year or so ago. If the eyes were not very sore before, they may be seriously infected by using stale eye medicine.

Not many remedies are needed in the average household. Have these in nicely labeled bottles and boxes. Have the bottles well and tightly corked. When you have finished the care of any trouble pour the medicine down the sink, or put it where it can do no harm to man or beast.

Have one place where all the household remedies are kept. Make this a dark and dustless receptacle and locate it in a cool place. Have every package labeled, showing the ingredients, its percentage of strength and the date you bought it.

Then if you read the label before applying the remedy there will never be a mistake in your house.

When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee; when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee. — Isaiah 43:2.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Monday.

The "Kinsey Komedy Kompany" opened a week's engagement at the Grand.

Moses Howard, charged with cutting with intent to kill, and Fred Baxter, charged with chicken-stealing, escaped from jail when the outer corridor door was left open momentarily under the assumption that all the prisoners were in the inner corridor.

Miss Hazel Whipps and Miss Addie Murdock arrived from Los Angeles and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hudson, of north Main street.

Miss Jessie Uline, nineteen, died at the home of her father on north Main street.

An advertisement was run for bids for the construction of the Marion City library.

Miss Nellie Lusche, of Marion, and Mr. William C. Ruhl, of Columbus, were married by Rev. Joseph Reinecke.

The board of education, bowing to public sentiment, stopped wrangling for the time-being, and elected Miss Rachel Thomas as instructor in drawing and penmanship.

John Anselment, sixty-five, of Claridon township, fell from a ladder and broke a truss which he was wearing, a piece of which penetrated his bowels and caused an injury from which he was not expected to recover.

The Methodist conference at Bowling Green returned Rev. D. H. Bailey as pastor of Epworth church and Rev. C. E. Rowley as pastor of Wesley church.

Rev. C. L. Reed was returned by the United Brethren conference at Chicago Junction as pastor of the local United Brethren church.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Storey, residing west of Marion, and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Christian Ruth, of Cummin avenue.

William Maag, thirty-six, dropped dead as a result of paralysis of the heart.

Today's Events.

Friday, September 24, 1926.

Fifty years ago today "Hell Gate," the famous reef blocking the entrance to the East river, New York, was successfully blown up.

This is the date, following the day on which the sun passes the equator, when old-time New Englanders look out for the proverbial "line storm."

Republicans of New Hampshire met in convention at Concord today to adopt a platform and ratify the ticket named in the recent primaries.

World war veterans who fought in France with the Seventy-Ninth division gathered in Philadelphia today for their annual convention and reunion.

This is "Apple Butter" day for the Schwenkfelders in America, and has been observed as such each year since 1734, when the first followers of Casper von Schwenkfelders landed in Philadelphia from Silesia. The event has become known as "Apple Butter" day because, when the first little group landed in 1734 they partook of a meal of bread and apple butter, so records state.

What Do You Want To Know? Ask Haskin.

Q. What is Gorgonzola cheese? O. P.

A. Gorgonzola is called the "aristocrat of Italian cheeses." It is very widely used and is somewhat similar to Roquefort, but not so expensive. Like Roquefort it is made of sheep's milk, but is milder in flavor. Gorgonzola is put up in twenty-pound baskets, one cheese to a basket. The outside of this cheese is covered with a preparation made chiefly from gypsum and tallow. In this way it is possible to keep the cheese a year or more. A great deal of this cheese comes from the province of Lombardy.

Q. Where is the biggest locomotive engine in the world? C. D. W.

A. What is said to be the world's largest and most powerful locomotive was recently put into use on the Virginian railway. It is an electric giant 152 feet long. It was necessary to build it in three sections, each one having a separate electric power unit installation, so that it might negotiate curves. It has 7,125 horsepower and can haul a loaded train almost two miles in length. It weighs over 1,250,000 pounds.

Q. I have been hearing about a plant from South America which is said to be much sweeter than cane sugar. Can you tell me anything about this? R. O.

A. A plant known as ka-a-he-e comes from the desert regions of eastern Paraguay and has been said to contain a substance nearly 200 times as sweet as cane sugar. American scientists are now experimenting to see if its saccharine properties may not be valuable in modern diet. It is thought that this may perhaps prove a boon to sufferers from diabetes.

Q. Do flies ever serve any useful purpose? M. O'S.

A. A new kind of fly was recently sent to the Smithsonian institution for identification. This fly has been discovered to be very effective in attacking a species of caterpillar which destroys cocoanut palms in the Federated Malay states. It appeared to be an entirely new variety and has been christened "Ptyschomyia remota."

Q. How many billiard tables are manufactured yearly? V. E. P.

A. The department of commerce announces that according to its biennial census of manufactures, in 1925 there were manufactured billiard and pool tables, bowling alleys and accessories, to the value of $5,505,736. This was a decrease of 11.7 per cent. since 1923, the date of the last census.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

The day's emphasis is too much on quantity, not enough on quality. It is true all along the line. Too much spending, and not enough in the right places. Too many people in the world, and not enough of the sort who are earnestly trying to make a better place to live in. Too many luncheon clubs, and not enough that know where they are going or what they are going to do.

Too many interests in life and not enough concentration on a few important things.

Speaking of quantity and quality, over in Java there are 30,000,000 people. Most of them have just enough to keep them alive. In the United States there are 113,000,000, most of them in far better shape than the folks in Java. As our population grows larger there will be less for all of us. Java has all quantity, little quality. Most of the people are at low level. In America most of the people are at least in the three-meals-a-day level. We have quantity in abundance, and quite a lot of quality. If we do not produce more quality, more men and women who will concentrate on making a better place to live in, our general level will drop to that in Java.

There must always be enough who will put the emphasis where it belongs if the good of the greater number is to be preserved.

A little publication from Antioch college, which is in Yellow Springs, Ohio, says this:

"History teaching can enlighten national policy. Facts give the only proper basis for opinion and judgment. The hard road of learning must be traveled by any one whose opinion would carry weight. But history is more than cold facts. It is a composite of movements, forces, conflicts, interests and shifting environment—all in accordance with the laws of nature and of human nature. To understand them helps us to understand our own time. If a knowledge of the facts of history throws light on the road ahead, it is worth having. Otherwise it but serves to identify persons of similar social background.

"Great social forces are bearing men and nations to their destinies; forces which, if understood, could be harnessed like steam, to drive the ship of state to a favored port. Unless the teaching of history increases that understanding, it is futile; and unless the student of history uses facts to illuminate living problems, he has wasted his time. The teaching of history and economics at Antioch has the development of that use as its aim."

Many of us see what is going on in the world, the changes in ideals and practices. We see the things that most interest young people. We see which way they look and go. We see the new interests of grown-ups. We recognize a changing world. But we don't know what to do about it.

The need of the hour is for a seeing eye, an understanding mind, a courageous hand.

"Great social forces are bearing men and nations to their destinies; forces which, if understood, could be harnessed like steam, to drive the ship of state to a favored port."

Thousands do not see anything new in the world. Thousands do see it, but don't know what it's all about.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY . . . .

New York, Sept. 24 — Thousands are strolling: Wish they'd locate those people and quit digging. The shrieks of pain from the dentists' building on Forty-Second street. Only two people I ever saw look like Fanda Millay and Richard Le Gallienne.

New York ladies are the best sports in the world. Big Bill Edwards. But they always get a good table. The yellow elevators are sooty again. The blind peddler in front of the Henry Miller theater. The parlors run by Flos and Dots.

Messenger boys escorting venerable Rollin Kirby, a cartoonist and one of the hotels named for famous men. The bewhiskered attendants in funeral parlors. The editor of a gossipy weekly who wears a monocle. Little Billy, the midget.

Those strapping uniformed men. Nudity certainly means little along Broadway. "Hire 'em and leaf 'em!" What's the use of the skirt dance. Salvation lassies. Broadwayites to think of their mothers' first racoon coat.

A ticket agency solicits orders for Christmas trees. Those tiny butterfly shops are filled with baubles. More of those glossy-haired hatless Orientals. Like a bagful of them. A tipsy young girl in a patrol wagon—chewing gum.

Actors with police dogs. A suit case fell out of a taxi. And seems to be leaking. A perfect fool—Ed Wynn. Not Browning. Fat sports with limps. Flappers with specs. Why do most optical store clerks wear glasses?

Cafe announces three orchestras. Most of them play one tune and sing the rest. The hunting-room of the Astor—where movie magnates lunch. The man who made a fortune printing theater programs.

At one of those swank cane stores I learned the "male malacca" was worth $10 more than the "female." Malacca is imported from the Straits Settlements. It is valued because of its tough skin and strength. Some is prettily clouded, some mottled and light and dark brown. The most valuable canes are those of one piece having bark the entire length. They range from $10 to $50.

The smallest musical instrument store in the world is for sale. It is in that intersection block on Forty-Seventh street where Seventh avenue crosses Broadway. It is about the size of the interior of a taxicab with a little more height yet it contains almost every instrument from the piccolo to the bull fiddle. The proprietor evidently has a keen longing for the great open spaces. There is not room for more than two customers at the same time. He has been able to make a good living.

And on upper Broadway the largest dog shop in the world is scheduled to open around the holidays. It will occupy an entire floor of a block long building. Every comfort for the dog is to be installed—grassy plots to play on, artificial lake, exercising contraptions and a show ring for display as large as the ordinary circus ring.—Copyright, 1926.

Who's Who and Why.

J. V. STALIN.

Behind the kaleidoscope of soviet politics which recently has sent some well-known figures tumbling, stands a new power in the person of Stalin, the name he took, which means the "Man of Steel." He is the Russian counterpart of an American political boss, the head of the machine, the power behind the principal actors of the soviet drama today, according to report reaching England.

He sent Trotzky into exile and called him back again. He directed Djerjinsky, the head of the ferocious Cheka, the secret police, who recently died under mysterious circumstances. He sent Zinovieff down from power and was behind the dismissal of Kamenoff from his place as chief of the commissariat of trade. His name is Josef Djugashvili.

He is a big man and dour. He is a bluster-ing, rough and impetuous leader, who won through discipline or cajolery. Lenine was his first idol and still is his example. But Stalin is a practical man of politics, who does not let fine theories stand in his way.

In his hands soviet Russia probably is on the edge of many changes which will make it fit more smoothly into the society of other nations, for Stalin is neither a bigot nor a fanatic.

He has made himself deliberately a man of greatest mystery. For years he boasted that he had never given out an interview.

He has been a revolutionist since 1905, when he took active part in bloody fighting in the Caucasus, for which he was arrested by the czar's police and exiled to Siberia. But he came back and worked several years, quietly and smoothly, with Lenine.

It was his task, when the soviet union was formed, to placate the so-called "subject nationalities," the states surrounding the fringes of Central Russia which were declared free and independent by the soviets, but which had, above all else, to be kept within the soviet circle.

Then Stalin was promoted to become secretary of the Communist party, which controls the soviet government, and there again his diplomacy, judgment and political sense won for him a conspicuous success.

He is gathering the fruits of it now, for the secretaryship gave him control of the soviet political machine, the "steam roller," which he now steers over the earlier officers.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

The worst joke I heard today was told by a fellow that sold me a pair of shoes. You don't often catch a shoe salesman that tells jokes, but I think it's a pretty good art at that. Shoe clerks are always looking down on us, that gives them a kinda sad expression, like undertakers. I always feel like taking off my hat in a shoe store, on account of the solemness. Some of the big stores even have thick rugs on the floor, so that it makes everything churchy and quiet, and I keep looking around to see who's going to ask the blessing. And after awhile, sure enough, some fellow that gets his corns pinched by a new shoe comes out like a penitent soul, and then all at once the sad-eyed usher and takes up the collection.

Well, this here clerk was a-telling jokes all the time, and the other fellows that was selling shoes the sad way was looking at him like he was a scab or like doctors would look at a dentist that would tell the patient there wasn't any use in cutting out his appendix. And he told me how he and another shoe clerk went to a barber shop to be shaved and the barber says to him:

"Say, your hair sure is in awful shape, needs a tonic bad."

And my friend says, kind of mad like:

"Well, and your shoes is about the worst kicks I've seen today, but I don't go home and tell you out about them before your friends, so it's—Copyright, 1926.

AMENDMENT BACKERS CALLED BY KNIGHT

Akron Publisher Plans Meeting Tuesday To Arrange Campaign

Akron, Sept. 24—Disregarding the suit to prevent the vote on the proposed primary amendment in the Supreme Court, Chairman C. L. Knight, of the State Primary Referendum Committee has issued a call for friends of the amendment to meet here next Tuesday. Plans then will be formulated for conducting their campaign.

Knight refused a few days ago to join with J. F. Burke, of Elyria, chairman of the Primary Defense League, in asking the secretary of state to withdraw petitions calling for a state-wide vote to modify the primary law.

FARRELL TRAILS HAGEN IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Salisbury Country Club, Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 24—Johnnie Farrell, Quaker Ridge, played a 71 here this morning, one under par, but he finished the morning round two down to Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Fla., who had a 69.

They were playing a semi-final 36-hole match in the Professional Golfers' Association championship at the Salisbury Country Club.

Leo Diegel, New York, finished his morning round five up on Johnnie Golden, of Patterson, N. J. Diegel was around in 68 and Golden was 72. Golden's card was liberally sprinkled with birdies as his putter was working like a charm.

blown out into Lake Erie but reports from intermediate cities today shows that the cyclone swerved eastward, passing over some cities at a height which prevented more serious damage than the uprooting of trees, until it again dipped earthward in Columbiana County.

Eye-witnesses declare that the storm was actually a series of three small tornadoes, following parallel courses. The route taken was virtually the same as that of the cyclone in 1924 which caused approximately 75 deaths and leveled Lorain.

Children Saved

Yesterday's storm broke just as country schools were adjourning. Near Huron, one school teacher, seeing the ominous clouds approaching, quickly herded her students to a point of safety a few seconds before the building was demolished.

Hundreds of trees were uprooted, roofs damaged and windows shattered when the tornado passed over Bowling Green, causing about $2,000 damage.

Frightened citizens lay on the ground in terror as the twister passed 200 feet above the city—too high to exercise the full force of its power.

STATE FILES DEMURRER IN SUIT OVER PRIMARY

Columbus, Sept. 24—Representing Secretary of State Thad Brown, Assistant Attorney General H. H. Griswold will file a demurrer in the State Supreme Court today, he said, in connection with the suit filed by former State Senator J. F. Burke, Elyria, and other officials of the Primary Defense League, seeking an order by the court prohibiting Brown from placing on the November ballot the proposed state constitutional amendment modifying the primary election system.

Griswold also said he will apply to the court for advancement of the hearing to Sept. 28.

designated as the woman companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple, at the Carmel cottage.

Another effort to produce a "Miss X" through a different source was being investigated by the district attorney today. District Attorney Asa Keyes claims that he has unearthed evidence from among the effects of "Dr." A. M. Waters, who killed himself a week ago, that he, too, was trying to find a mythical "Miss X."

Denies Story

It is also charged that Mrs. McPherson communicated with Ormiston as recently as Aug. 15. All efforts to locate Ormiston, who is also wanted on conspiracy charges, have proven fruitless. He has been reported as being both in Los Angeles and Chicago.

Mrs. McPherson has steadfastly denied that she was the woman companion of Ormiston at Carmel and today appeared to welcome the approaching hearing, intimating that she would have a story to tell that would confound her accusers.

Sheriff James F. McDonald, of Cochise County, Arizona, one of the first to doubt the kidnaping story of Mrs. McPherson, who said she was spirited away by "Rose" and "Steve," and taken to Mexico, while her followers thought her a victim of drowning, probably will be an important witness at the preliminary hearing.

ensite. Dempsey's lukewarm followers deserted him before the first round was over. His staunchest admirers shipped over the line when Tunney rocked the defender with hard socks to the body and chin in the fourth and fifth rounds.

As the blow-for-blow report of the fight was relayed to the thousands attending the Star's fight party great cheers arose when Tunney staggered the champion. When it was announced that Jack was groggy excited fans threw all restraint to the winds and gave vent to their evident satisfaction.

Even those who had wagered money on Dempsey, and there were not a few, were rooting for the new champion before the referee's bell announced the last brief chapter in Dempsey's fighting history.

While it was evident, yes, conclusive, that Tunney was the next world's heavyweight champion before the last three rounds, no one walked away from the Star's fight party. They waited until the referee's decision was flashed across the country.

With one last noisy demonstration the crowds received the announcement of Tunney's unquestioned superiority. A few minutes later fight fans could be seen digesting the account of the fight printed in the Star's extra. They stood in knots on street corners discussing the event.

Many Awaited Returns

While no definite figures are available it has been estimated by those who saw the crowds at the Star last night and radio merchants who entertained the public in their stores that fully 20,000 persons in Marion knew the outcome of the bout a few minutes after it was over.

Hundreds of telephone calls were received at the Star office, at poolrooms, radio stores and other places receiving radio reports of the fight. There was a party in practically every home that boasted a radio.

ILLINOIS FARMERS WAR ON POISONOUS WEEDS

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 24—War has been opened by Dr. F. A. Laird, state veterinarian, and the state department of agriculture on snakeroot weed, which this year is claiming its usual number of cattle as victims.

Death of eight cattle on one farm near here brought a warning to farmers from the state to destroy this weed whenever found.

A survey is being made in an attempt to stamp out the menace to the cattle.

EGYPT PLANS REDUCTION IN DIPLOMATIC SERVICE

Cairo, Sept. 24—Sweeping reductions in the Egyptian Diplomatic Service with a view to economy is recommended by a Parliamentary Commission.

The Commission proposes the abolition of the Egyptian legations and consulates at Brazil, Sweden, Switzerland, Belgium, Spain, Czecho-Slovakia, Holland, Roumania.

All consulates in cities where legations exist will be suppressed, including those in New York, Liverpool, Lyons, Budapest, Hamburg, Naples and Piraeus. In addition all charge d'affaires will be replaced by first secretaries, while all second secretaries, attached lawyers and interpreters will be dismissed.

LONDON COMPANY HUNTS SHARKS IN SOUTHERN SEAS

London, Sept. 24—A company has been formed here to capture sharks in the Southern seas and turn them into commercial products in the form of leather, oil, glue, fertilizer and food.

Ships have been built equipped as factories where the sharks can be made ready for export within forty-eight hours after their capture.

One of the chief products are to the fins, which are highly prized as a table delicacy in some parts of the world.

Dempsey battle Tunney in a lashing rainstorm in that 20-foot elevated ring beneath blazing Klieg lights with 130,000 people watching the drama with death-like stillness in the great U-shaped Sesqui-Centennial Stadium will deny that Dempsey fought a bad fight.

Knew He Was Beaten

No one who witnessed it close up will ever forget the spectacle of the bloody Dempsey walking to his corner when the bell rang at the end of the tenth round.

The light of defeat was in Dempsey's eyes. He knew he was beaten and he seemed about to run out of the ring without awaiting the official decision.

Instead, however, he checked himself and slowly walked to his corner, his bloody head bowed and extending his hands across the ropes and looking out upon the vast, fan-packed stands, he cried like a whipped boy. Yes, great Tears coursed down his cheeks and he tried to brush them away with his blood-stained gloves.

His face had been literally cut to ribbons. His left eye was completely closed and blood was oozing from it. The left side of his face had been battered out of proportion, giving him a weird, ghastly appearance.

Scowl Gone, Now Despair

There was a deep horizontal gash about two inches in width directly below his right eye. Blood was trickling down from this wound. His bronzed face had been pummeled so much, that it resembled the pinkness of a baby's.

The famous scowl was gone. Instead, despair was etched deeply into his grim features and he seemed to be in the deepest mental pain. His thought, one surmised, cut him worse even than Tunney's blows.

Over in the other corner, the victorious Tunney, all smiles and hardly showing a mark, was busy shaking hands. Photographers, anticipating the announcement declaring Tunney the victor, leaped into the ring calling upon him to pose for a picture. Dempsey was ignored by the cameramen, and into the ring jumped a dozen or more marine officers, surrounding the victor and clapping him on the back affectionately. It was Tunney's big moment. He had proved to everybody's satisfaction what he said he believed he was—a "man of destiny" as far as the heavyweight champion of the world was concerned.

That surprises you, doesn't it? But it's a fact. And it pleased and flattered me that I should be able to make you—just a boy—love me. Nutriment to some women's vanity is requisite, you know. Especially at thirty-two. They'll go to any length to attain it. They'll even give up luxury, for a while, the way I have. But, of course that can't last. The time comes when apartments on Park Avenue and motor cars and pearls look pretty good again, and collegiate devotion grows stale—"

"In other words, Jock Hamill," she concluded, glancing toward him for the first time, "the game has ceased to be worth the candle."

His face lashed her, so stark-white and stricken it was. Even his lips were white.

He spoke slowly. "Then all this—has been nothing to you—"

"But an interlude." Yvonne stood up, actuated by an odd notion that in repose her body could no longer bear its agony. One thought was uppermost. Jock must go, and quickly, before she faltered in this hideous role and lost herself . . .

"You might go now, Jock Hamill. I don't think there's anything more for either of us to say."

"Oh, go," she cried wildly. "Can't you understand? I don't want you—"

In a stride he was standing close to her, holding her arms with fingers that bit the flesh, forcing her eyes to lift to his. "Yvonne—do you know what you're doing to me?"

"Perfectly. But you'll get over it."

His laugh was dreadful to hear. "Just like that! Throw everything in the dirt and stamp on it—tear every single thing in the world to pieces in a minute—and then say, 'You'll get over it.' Ha! That's very nearly funny—" His voice broke, and there was suddenly less harshness than tenderness in the clutch of his hands. He had a single instant of clear vision. "Yvonne, you don't mean these things. You can't mean them! You've just got that mad idea you used to have—that you ought not to marry me—"

Yvonne pulled herself away from him and stood, cool and contemptuous at a little distance. "'Ought not'!" she mocked. "Stupid words! I use them now and then, but never in my life have they prevented me from taking anything I really wanted." She concluded, thoughtfully." For instance: I suppose there are people who would say that I 'ought not' to go back to Parke Demorest. Nevertheless I'm going back to him—tomorrow."

CHAPTER VIII

There was an age-long interval while their glances clashed, fire against frigidity. Then Jock turned . . . . swooped up his coat . . . and went.

Yvonne sank to her knees and huddled there on the carpet, a little shuddering heap of silk and feathers.

For months he honestly believed that he would never be happy again.

So perverse is human nature that when something we have long possessed is taken from us, we do not try to determine whether or not, in our hearts, we still valued it. There is theft, even though it removes the thing with which we would have parted voluntarily in a little while. Jock regarded himself as a man who had suffered irreparable loss, and not until much later did he come to the realization that he had ceased to require what he lost before he lost it.

In the meantime, he was very melancholy, and very sure that without Yvonne nothing under heavens could ever be the same! The first sharp throes of anguish subsided in due time, with the aid of a good deal of liquor. Afterward, bitterness and a sense of the futility of all dreams and all desires dwelt in him. This was his reaction. And while it ran its course he looked upon life with the eyes of a cynic, and his whole mental state was a sneer. Women? Treacherous. Love? A story-book fallacy. Ideals? As sand huts on a tidal beach, built for destruction.

But there was work. ("Thank God!" said Jock somewhat melodramatically, as young men in like plight have said since time immemorial). Congenial work. Absorbing work. In a great dirty room full of shirt-sleeved figures, prodigious tables row on row, smooth sheets of copy paper, crumpled wads of copy paper, typewriters that chattered like a million teeth in a chill, air that was dead with smoke and must and dust and printers' ink, and alive—frantic—with breathlessness . . . From the day of his introduction to the city room of the Log he had only to enter it to feel his spirits lighten. It was a refuge and a resort, a place where the little aches of individuals were forgotten in the mighty birthpangs of a Thing.

They gave him, of course, only the most trifling assignments at the start. But the least of them thrilled him. He loved the voice of the city editor, rasping "Hamill"; the dash to some out-of-the-way place to get some unimportant item, the privilege of mentioning the name of the Log by way of identification. He loved to return and seat himself at one of those battered typewriters, with his shoes hooked about the legs of his chair and his body hunched over, and watch words reap out in lines from the tips of his fingers. This was fulfillment, in small degree, of his secret ambition. Writing. Putting things down on paper. Seeing them in print . . It meant much to be able to open an edition to a certain page, and point, and say, "That's mine," even though "that" might be nothing more vital than a string of obituary notices collected over the 'phone or a paragraph beginning, "An exhibition of useful and fancy articles made by inmates of the Hudson Home for the Blind" . . .

Unfortunately, however, work did not fill every waking hour. His evenings were miserable. He spent them at home, reading a little, brooding much, stubbornly thwarting the efforts of his friends to provide him with entertainment. "For gosh sakes, Jock, anybody'd think you were in mourning!" Peg wailed, after her tenth invitation to Washington Square had been turned down. To which Jock replied—though not aloud—"I am."

CHAPTER IX

As a matter of fact his avoidance of companionship was less in mourning than in self-defense. He feared that people might try to talk to him about Yvonne and as yet he winced whenever that spot was touched by any finger—whether curiously prodding or gently compassionate made no difference. In this respect his mother was a source of satisfaction, for she had the great good sense to behave as though nothing whatever had happened. He appreciated this the more because he suspected she was glad of this catastrophe, and because he thought, since he had given her but the barest outline of it, she must be burning with unasked questions. He could not guess that Mrs. Hamill felt no need of questions, that her understanding was far deeper than his own, and her new thought of Yvonne a mixture of gratitude, admiration, and something akin to love. "Some day" she told Saunders Lincoln, "—not for a long, long time, of course, but some day, I'm going to let Jock know what a beautiful thing it was that that girl did."

He saw Peg only four or five times in as many months, and Cecily he did not see at all. Through Peg and Johnny, who had evidently adopted her as one of their intimates, he kept track of her goings and comings. She was at Palm Beach with her parents. No, she wasn't married yet, but Bill Burnholme had followed her from Palm Beach and would sail for Europe in two weeks. (During those two weeks he telephones twice "just to say hello", but did not find her in.) . . . She was in Europe. She was having a wonderful time. Her letters, Peg said, spoke enthusiastically of some young French count she had met at Deauville. She expected to return to the States the last of May. . . . She had returned, and was visiting friends in Cleveland. No, she wasn't married yet. No nobody knew when she intended to get married. Yes, Bill Burnholme was still reported to be slavishly attentive. One never knew, of course . . .

In June Johnny began to talk vacation plans to Jock.

They were lunching one day, as they often did, at a little cafe across the alley from the Log office where the sandwiches were ready to serve and the beer as "near" as could be expected. And Johnny said thickly, through a mouthful, "When you gonna take your vacation?"

"I don't rate one. I've only worked four months and a half."

"Sure you rate one! May be only four months and a half, but you've worked harder than any other six men do in a year! Don't think the old man doesn't know it, either. He'll see that you get a week off at least, any time you want it."

"I'm in no hurry," said Jock.

Johnny regarded him solemnly over the rim of his mug (supplied by the management to heighten the illusion). "Listen to me, boy," he ordered, setting the mug down with a thump. "My well-earned rest starts a week from Saturday. Peg and I are going to spend it down near New London, where dad has a summer place which he's agreed to turn over to us, and we're going to take a bunch along for a houseparty. And you are coming too, d'you hear?"

"I hear," Jock smiled.

"Meaning, 'but won't obey,' huh. Listen Jock——"

"I know what you're going to say. It'll be a peach of a go, of course, but—thanks just the same. Ask me again sometime, Johnny. Sometime when I'm—more in the mood."

"If ever!" Johnny said despairingly. "Look here, Jock, there's no damn sense in your acting like this. It's all nonsense. Nearly five months since the thing happened—isn't it about time you staged a return to normalcy?"

There was no answer, and for some moments the pair munched and gulped in silence. Then Johnny said, "Well, if you change your mind, the latch-string's out, remember."

"Thanks. But not this time, I guess."

"Cecily's going to be there—"

"Is she?" Jock queried politely.

—As Johnny remarked later to Peg "What can you do with a guy like that?"

What Makes Home Happy?

FOUR walls can make a house, but it takes a woman to make a home.

The woman who prepares nourishing and attractive meals, does her housework without grumbling, raises a family of healthy boys and girls and still finds time to be a pal to her husband and a friend to her neighbors, is accomplishing the biggest job in the world. Homes like hers—little havens of peace and love—are the bulwark of the nation.

To be a successful homemaker a woman must guard her health. When the mother is not well the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experiences, as Mrs. Riessinger did, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MRS. RIESSINGER was in poor health after the birth of her first baby. She weighed only 98 pounds. One day a neighbor told her of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she decided to try it. "After taking four bottles," she writes, "I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework without one bit of trouble." Her address is MRS. M. RIESSINGER, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

PRETENDING not to hear Dicky's sneering remark I walked to my desk, where I always keep loose change, and taking a coin from it, tipped the messenger who had brought me the cablegram, and dismissed him. Then I inclined my head toward my husband with the perfunctory courtesy one would accord the merest chance acquaintance.

"Will you excuse me?" I asked.

When he simply nodded without replying I guessed that he was too angry for speech. He was no more wrathful than I, however, for his contemptuous allusion to Hugh Grantland, the only person from whom a cablegram could possibly have come to me, had infuriated me with the sense of unfairness which the breaking of a promise always gives. After the memorable torturing time when Hugh Grantland had rescued Junior from the man whom Grace Draper had forced to kidnap the child, Dicky voluntarily had promised me that he never again would apply to the former army officer the hateful appellation of "Faithful Fido." This had been his invariable name for Major Grantland ever since the secret service work which Hugh and I shared and which had resulted in a close friendship, an almost brotherly and sisterly relationship between us.

Madge Resents Dicky's Jealousy

Dicky had unscrupulously kept the promise ever since, although I think he guessed what I had learned during the past year—that Hugh Grantland's affection for me was anything but brotherly. But, I reasoned with the clarity which had come to me recently, I could name several women who looked upon Dicky with eyes that were not those of sisters. I felt that his evident jealousy was no excuse for him and that there was something common and cheapening both to Dicky and me in his resumption of this epithet.

I tore open the white envelope with hands which were curiously unsteady, for with a mingling of self-reproach and surprise I realized that I scarcely had thought of Hugh Grantland, as true and knightly a friend as ever woman had, in these last heady and eventful weeks since Philip Veritzen had given me the entrance into the dramatic world of which I had dreamed vainly for years.

I was all the more abashed because of the consciousness that just before the advent of the famous theatrical producer into my life I had given a good deal of romantic and speculative thought to Hugh Grantland.

"I'd Open a Shop"

Nothing so rouses a woman's interrogation as the knowledge that she is unduly conscious of some circumstance. With Dicky, I had been instrumental in saying Hugh from death and a dishonored name. This I felt that I in part had paid for the signal service he had rendered me when he rescued my child. During that stressful time he had made it quite unmistakable the great love he bore me, and ever since he had gone back to Chinese Lily Lee Cove, his high boat, the one to which he had so long pursued her, as we say here, there had come to me from time to time rare souvenirs of his Oriental hosts. Curiously carved jades, wonderful fans, filmy scarves heavily embroidered shawls—things to make my feminine heart skip a beat or two had been sent to me with brief messages. I could not escape the conviction that they were a subtle wooing of me that the restraint he had for years cast upon his affection for me had been loosened by the peril I had undergone for his sake at Tindan. There was no word in the messages, however, which I or anybody else could possibly construe as indiscreet, and he sent Lillian almost as beautiful things as those which came to me.

"If only I had two or three more friends with devoted but Quixotic millionaire brothers traveling in the Orient," he had once said with a wicked little moue, "I wouldn't stay in this advertising copy game. I'd open a gift shop and make my everlasting fortune."

It was with the remembrance of all these things, and remorse for having forgotten them so completely that I took out the cablegram and read it.

Hands were blistered, raw, inflamed

Acute form of eczema yields at last to soothing treatment

Chicago, Illinois, April 14:—"A few months ago I had what I presume was an acute form of eczema. Red blotches and cracks, which refused to heal, appeared on the fingers of my left hand, then spread to my right hand. Both became raw, inflamed and blistery. I began to apply Resinol Ointment and after using three jars my hands are again in perfect shape. Your ointment is wonderful not only for its soothing effect to burning, itching skin, but for its quick healing qualities. From today on I am a volunteer booster of Resinol." (Signed) F. R. Women Find

Great comfort in this new hygienic pad that discards easily as tissue—no laundry

ON many important counts, women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad."

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

✓ As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

KOTEX

No laundry—discard like tissue

Pimples gone! ~ a clean shave ~ ready to meet the world

THEY'RE GONE! Those unsightly, annoying pimples that were such an embarrassment to you. Absolutely disappeared! S. S. S., the powerful blood cleanser and red, blood builder, did it!

Now you know what to do about such skin eruptions. Now you know how foolish it is to let pimples, blackheads, boils, blotches, eczema and such things remain to handicap you.

Now that you are free of such unsightly things, people will welcome you—like to see you and talk to you, instead of making excuses to keep out of your way.

When S. S. S. starts charging through your blood, skin troubles fade away. Your whole system is improved—nerves strengthened—appetite returns—strength and power comes back into flabby muscles—you feel like yourself again.

S. S. S.

S. S. S. is sold by all druggists. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

Class A Railroads In U. S. Show Highest Record of Efficiency In Use of Coal

142 Pounds of Fuel Required in First Six Months of 1926 To Haul 1,000 Tons of Freight and Equipment Distance of One Mile

Class A railroads of this country have shown efficiency on record [illegible] locomotives during the first six months of this year, according to reports received here from the Bureau of Economics.

[illegible] 142 pounds of fuel was required in the first six months of 1926 to haul 1,000 tons of freight and equipment, including locomotive and tender, a distance of one mile. This is the lowest average ever attained by railroads.

Railroads operating through Marion have been conducting experiments during the last few weeks in an effort to reduce still further the amount of fuel used to haul freight a certain distance.

The Hocking Valley has held several tests with a rebuilt Santa Fe type locomotive and even under the severest of tests, the engine has shown up well and favorable results of the experiments are reported.

Gasoline Train

A few weeks ago, the Pennsylvania Railroad operated a new gasoline train between Columbus and Sandusky through this city. The train made only two round trips over the division but both journeys gave favorable results and in the future the car may again be placed in operation, replacing steam-driven locomotives.

On every occasion and during every test, the object of the railroad company is to provide for more economical service and, according to reports from the bureau at Washington, the railroads are succeeding in their aim.

The Hocking Valley tests were held to provide more economical freight service while the Pennsylvania gasoline train carried passenger and baggage only.

In referring to efficiency, used in conservation of fuel for passenger service, the Bureau of Economics reports that all records in this department were broken during the first six months of 1926.

Receives Applications

Applications for positions of five brakemen, two flagmen and a conductor are being received in the office of C. P. Shaughnessy, in the local Erie yards.

Rain Stops Work

Rain yesterday for several hours stopped work on the new Hocking Valley water line, being constructed under W. Center-st today.

Work Under Way

Work on the erection of the new 100,000 gallon steel water tans of the Hocking Valley is well under way today, at least 10 men being employed on the job.

Safety Bulletins

Bulletins and posters emphasizing safety on the railroad have been posted in local railway offices.

Methods to be used in handling the work of the railroad in a safe manner are noted in the bulletins while posters carry scenes of accidents and means of preventing them.

The all-year safety program of the railroads includes the slogan "Do it the right way." It has been found that when all railroaders do things as instructed that few accidents are recorded.

Few accidents are reported in Marion yards and officials of the railroads operating through this city are doing all in their power to continue the good record.

WOMAS EXCAVATOR FINDS 12,000-YEAR-OLD RELICS

Samples of First Wheat in Old Baskets Under Land

London Sept 24— Basket work at least 12,000 years old, the first bread-wheat of prehistoric days ever found and the earliest known sickle are among the treasure unearthed by Miss Caton-Thompson a well known archaeologist, while digging on the Fayum prehistoric settlements sixty miles south of Cairo, Egypt.

These relics are now at the University College buildings here, where experts are attempting to unravel their history and if possible add to the world's knowledge of those far off days.

The basket work, examples of greatness, revealed while [illegible] work, were took the form of [illegible] using coiled straw or sticks [illegible] in sort of mats were woven [illegible] ley and [illegible] farmers.

Examination has proved [illegible] to be two kinds of cultivated wheat, emmer and bread. The [illegible] known to be used in prehistoric [illegible] but this appears to be the first [illegible] of bread-wheat in such early [illegible]

What the Close-up Reveals

Scene from "Ella Cinders" Featuring Colleen Moore—a First National Star

What was the secret of her charm?

What did the "close-up" reveal?

Some said "personality"—really it was her personality of action. Her every movement seemed set to music, so light and buoyant was her step.

She knew the important part shoes play in the strenuous activities of the actress; with nice discrimination she chose shoes that enhanced her natural grace and beauty.

You too can be more graceful—you can enhance your natural charm by wearing FOOT SAVER SHOES, the famous footwear with the exclusive in-built features that lend grace and wondrous ease to the carriage.

Decide now your next shoes will be Foot Savers.

Visit our Store—get fitted in Foot Savers—you will feel a lightness of step and a joy in walking you have never experienced before.

Why Our Out-of-Town Business Is Good—

Out-of-town buyers are careful buyers. They look around and shop around. They will permit no high-voltage salesman to sell them anything they do not want to buy. They rarely regret their purchases.

The general store policy of Schaffner's seems to fit in with the ideas of out-of-town buyers, for we enjoy a fine patronage from that class of buyer. Folks from surroundings towns, and from the farms, sort of make our store their "headquarters" when in Marion.

COAL HEATERS

At our old store, 188 So. Main St., we are showing the New Heatrola and Globe Hot Blast.

The Heatrola uses any kind of fuel. But, unlike the stove, it does not radiate heat—toasting your face while it leaves your back cold. It CIRCULATES moist, warm air in billowing waves that reach every out-of-the-way corner of the house. The upstairs rooms are kept as comfortable as the room in which the Heatrola stands.

The Globe is the ideal home heater. It is of sturdy construction and at the same time it lends a distinct beauty and "homey" appearance to any room. It is without doubt the best medium priced heater made—in appearance, in construction and in quality.

STOCKHOLDERS NOTIFIED OF RECEIVERSHIP

Communications Sent Out by Secretary of Two Bucyrus Steel Companies

Bucyrus, Sept. 24—Letters to all the stockholders of the Hadfield-Penfield Steel Co., have been sent by the secretary, R. O. Perrott regarding the appointment of a receiver for the company. The letter in part reads:

"The application for a receiver has been made in a spirit of helpfulness, the desire being to aid these companies (The Era Steel Co. and Hadfield-Penfield Steel Co., of Bucyrus) out of their financial difficulties. The plants will be operated and there is every reason to expect that Mr. M. A. Riddell (the receiver) will be able to operate both companies and that only good will result from this move."

There have been no changes in the management or in the forces of employes and contracts are going ahead as usual. There has been no interest or dividends paid on the majority of the stock owned by local persons for the past nine years.

If the bond sale progresses satisfactorily the sale will be made immediately.

Hold Grid Practice

As is the yearly custom the men of the O. N. G., who are especially interested in athletics are now trying out for football. Several games are under contemplation and practices are going forward with material for a splendid lineup this year. Two more weeks will see a team formulated and games scheduled for the coming season.

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR ADDRESSES HIGH SCHOOL

Rev. Daniel Hamill Exhorts Mt. Gilead Students To Improve Opportunities

Mt. Gilead, Sept. 24—Rev. Daniel Hamill, the newly installed pastor at the Presbyterian Church, was the speaker at the weekly chapel service at the high school yesterday morning.

Supt. P. E. Arnoldd read the Scripture lesson and led in prayer.

Rev. Hamill stressed the importance of the time in which we are living and exhorted the pupils to greater effort to improve their opportunities.

Chapel services will be held at the local high school every Wednesday morning, from 9 to 9:30 o'clock.

HOLD "SCHOOL" AT PYTHIANS' RALLY

Waldo, Sept. 24—The local chapter of the Pythian Sisters held a rally last night at the K of P. hall with 60 present. Following the regular business session, those present were drafted as pupils in an old time country school with Mrs. D. B. Osborn acting as teacher. The school closed with a spelling contest in which the pupils were required to spell the words backwards. A banquet was served after the program.

KENTON BASEBALL TEAM TO PLAY MARYSVILLE

Heart of Ohio League Standing May Be Changed by Season's Last Game

Kenton, Sept. 24—With the Kenton Reds in third place in the Heart of Ohio League, as the result of their long string of victories the past several weeks, they now stand a chance of advancing to second place Sunday when they meet the strong Marysville club at Lake Idlewild park.

Holycross, pitching ace for the visitors, and Ray Ferner, lengthy right hander of the Reds, are slated as the opposing twirlers and the contest Sunday promises to resolve itself into a pitchers' battle. In their contests last Sunday Holycross held Marysville's opponents to two hits, while Ferner let Prospect down with but one lone bingle.

The Kenton-Marysville game Sunday will officially close play in the Heart-of-Ohio League.

RAINS LOWER ATTENDANCE AT KENTON FAIR

Inclemencies Handicap Success of Thursday; Sport Events Postponed

Kenton, Sept. 24—A heavy downpour of rain Thursday morning followed by threatening weather throughout the afternoon, resulted in a big decrease in attendance figures at the Hardin county agricultural exposition yesterday.

The speed events were also postponed until this afternoon after the rain made the half-mile course soggy and unfit for racing.

Although the inclement weather seriously handicapped the fair Thursday, always considered the banner day, officials today declared that the exposition would not be continued through Saturday but would be brought to a close this evening.

Schools throughout the county were dismissed at noon that the pupils might attend the exposition. With any kind of weather at all, Secretary Ralph E. Pugh expressed the belief that the gate receipts for the final afternoon would in some degree replace the loss from Thursday's diminished attendance.

Judging of the hundreds of exhibits in the various departments was completed by a corps of expert judges late Thursday and the placing of awards is under way today. Probably the largest number of displays was that placed by the students of the Vocational Agricultural classes of Hardin county. More than 1,600 single entries of live stock corn and grain were listed by the farm youths.

The farm products department also contained more than one thousand entries, with G. W. Riley of LaRue, and W. W. Long and Mrs. Paul Liles being listed as the largest displayers.

In the Hardin county grange department, in which the separate grange units vied for honors with their individual displays, first honor was awarded Maple Grange. Others finished in the order named: Friendship Grange, Painter Creek Grange, Goshen Grange and Banner grange. Washington Grange presented the display with which it won state honors during the Ohio State Fair.

The old time fiddlers' contest was won by E. F. Grim of Agosta, while P. C. Campbell came second and Lance Butler, third. The latter two were from Kenton.

Green Camp News

Green Camp, Sept. 24—Sunday, Mrs. Edith Welch and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Witcraft, entertained at dinner, Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Field of Camis, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Patton and son Glen and Mrs. Harry Gill of Marion; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ward, Mr. H. C. Ward and Mr. Elsworth Ward of Caledonia; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Firstenberger and daughters Dorothy Jean and Kathryn.

At College

Those from this place attending various colleges include: Miss Gladys Uncapher, Miss Opal Schertzer, Miss Marjorie Porter and Paul Furniss, Wilmington; Miss Esther Haberman, Heidelberg; Clifford McClung and Merle Johnson, Northwestern, and Coe Leach, Ohio State.

Rev. David Winters filled the pulpit at the Reformed Church Sunday morning. Rev. Winter was pastor here about 28 years ago.

Mr. Charley Keller and son Harold and daughter Ruth, of Spencerville, visited over the week end at the G. C. Reichardt home.

In order to cure a vice, a man has generally to get tired of it.

His Grace, the Right Rev. Arthur E. W. Ingram, bishop of London, leaves England soon on a tour which will take him into most of the capitals of the world. He will give lectures at eight American universities and will be heard in many of the nation's great churches. He is seen here in the garden of his home.

BELLVILLE HIGH PLAYS MT. GILEAD SATURDAY

Morrow County Gridders To Open Home Season Against Stiff Opposition

Mt. Gilead, Sept. 24—The local high school gridders will open the home season Saturday, with Bellville High as the opposition. The entire squad went through the Stivers High, of Dayton, game with no injuries, and are in exceedingly good spirits over the excellent showing made against the much heavier team.

Coach Matheny is taking no chances in the game Saturday. In spite of the 26 to 0 win over Bellville last year, the coach is not too sanguine over the chances, as Bellville occasionally has a strong team.

Saturday's game showed the weaknesses of the local's offense, and toward that Matheny is directing his attention this week. Practices are held daily in tackling, blocking and returning kicks, as well as offensive work in developing plays. Attention is being centered upon interference.

The local home card calls for six games. Bellville, Danville, Loudonville, Marysville, Lexington and Upper Sandusky will appear on the local gridiron this fall.

Prospect News

Prospect, Sept. 24—Mrs. F. C. Poppleton received a letter Thursday from her brother, W. H. Davis, of Miami, Florida, that he and his wife and two daughters were safe. Considerable damage was done to his property. Mrs. Poppleton's property was not much damaged. Mr. Davis has been a resident of Miami for 28 years.

Miss Dorothy Horn is teaching English and French in the High School at LeRoy.

Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Chapin are visiting Prof. Merle E. Chapin at Carthage, Illinois.

A new sign has just been erected on the corner near the spring; it reads "Ohio's Best Spring Water."

PRETTY WEDDING IS SOLEMNIZED THURSDAY

Miss Ruth H. Ulrich United in Marriage to Lewis Henry Kleinlein

Upper Sandusky, Sept. 24—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at 6:00 o'clock Thursday morning when Miss Ruth Halanih Ulrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Ulrich, of Eden township, became the bride of Lewis Henry Kleinlein, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kleinlein, of N. Eighth-st, this city. The single ring ceremony was read by the Rev. C. A. Riggs, pastor of Eden Community M. E. charge, in the presence of the immediate families, at the home of the bride's parents. There were no attendants.

The wedding march was played by Miss Vivian Ulrich, sister of the bride. The bride's wedding dress was of white silk crepe, trimmed in rhinestones. Her bridal veil of silk net was caught with orange blossoms and her flowers were pink roses and snapdragons. She wore silver brocaded slippers. She was graduated from Eden Centralized High School with the class of 1924 and for over two years has been employed at the Bowman Flock & Co. Drug Store.

Mr. Kleinlein is associated with his father in the jewelry business in this city.

Following the ceremony a three course wedding breakfast was served, a color note of pink and white being used in the decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Kleinlein left immediately after on a wedding trip through the east. On their return they will occupy a newly furnished apartment on W. Wyandot-av.

Gene Tunney Wins Ten Round Championship Decision

Dempsey Narrowly Escapes Knock Out And Fails To Take One Round: Two Even

Bell Saves Champion in First and Last Rounds; Sixth and Seventh Are Even; Tunney Is Bewildered By Easy Victory

BY JACK LAIT

Philadelphia, Sept. 24—The shell of what was once a great champion has paid that toll which the proverb says must be served to youth.

Jack Dempsey, who at his worst can always tell his children's children that he once was a champion, lost like a dog in the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium last night to one Gene Tunney, who though he is still the champion will never be a champion.

The heavyweight title, proudly owned by Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, has indeed fallen into a low estate in the stewardship of the intellectual Tunney. At least three men fought in the preliminaries who could lick him the best day of his life, which is today.

The lamb slew the butcher, yes, but it's an active, vigorous lamb and a weary, sagging old butcher who showed upon a face that once was famous for its perfect delineation of the fighting man, a careworn and tortured expression.

Dopesters Wrong

The "experts" who said that Dempsey was in the pink of fighting condition should wash their mouths with soap. This veteran reporter, who has taken in every important boxing match of his period and that ranges back a few years, has never been a worse defender of a title since that pitiful afternoon in Reno, when Jim Jeffries staggered forth to do battle with Johnson.

It took no sharpshooter to call the turn. It required no referee or meticulously hewn judges. Before Jack Dempsey, the killer of old, had dragged his listless and lifeless carcass half way across the soggy ring at the clang of the opening gong, it was a foregone cinch. The man was unfit to fight. No contender in histry ever got the break that Tunney did. Weighing 185 1-2 pounds, a defensive boxer, a so-so hitter and a 3 to 1 outsider, catching the champion of champion's in such a situation and coming out the monarch of pugilism.

The whole business was off key. Fancy a heavyweight king, who drew 132,000 people and $2,000,000 never being introduced, and the alleged aspirant not even rising to make a bow when his name was called.

Everyone Was Wet

It was raining. Tex Rickard had taken his pitcher to the well once too often. He had put on seemingly endless preliminaries, meaningless combats between unimportant nobodies, until far after 9:30. By the time Dempsey and Tunney got into the ring, it was pouring so that no one cared much about anything. Then they started taping—yards and yards of gauze they wound about the hands of the supposedly best gladiators in the whole world. And it finally started, it was wetter than ever. Dempsey, that notorious devastating mauler, shuffled out of his corner with the look of a schoolboy caught a-playing hookey, as indeed he had for more than two years.

Tunney was as nervous, sparring, backing, boxing until it dawned on him that he was thrown in with a phantom, shadow without substance.

Even then he never assumed the aggressive except in the last two rounds, when he had the championship in his hand and should have taken no chances.

Winner Is Stupid

An astoundingly stupid fighter is this Tunney. He won every round from what had been a truly miraculous champion, and yet he came forth convicted of almost every misdemeanor known to smart ring generalship. He could have knocked Dempsey out in the first round if he had forced his way; he should have dispatched him in any of the following rounds. But when he had the world to gain, he was careful, and when he was already champion before the decision that made him so, he was undecided, now forcing it, again taking to his heels.

Dempsey Was Fair Actor

Dempsey was a pathetic spectacle. He started with his face green, set in a silly grin. He tried to put on the snarl of the murderer, but his features wouldn't respond because his heart wasn't in it. After he got a few cracks to his jaw, he folded up as he did in the first 11 rounds of his match with the late Bill Brennan. Spitting gobs of blood, his left eye closed tight, his right cut and bleeding from a ragged wound, he bobbed and crouched and missed and swung and puffed and tried to look ferocious.

Like a grotesque, synthetic thing, his tailor-made nose stood forth in the middle of the face like some fantastic butterfly that had fluttered into a slaughter house.

Tunney, a second class defensive boxer, couldn't stay away from him. Dempsey kept leading, following, plunging in and missing a mile and Tunney had to strike at him through a sense of shame. It would have been a sin not to hit him under the circumstances.

Tunney Not Hurt

Dempsey scarcely laid a glove on Tunney. The few times that he did connect, always at the start of a round, those blows which of old were enough to send the crowd home, were steamless, spiritless and stingless. No power no heart, no soul in them. Dempsey may have entered the ring with an honest desire and intention to win, but it failed him after the first counter punch that nailed him on his nice new nose. After that, he stalled, with an occasional sporadic flurry of going through the gestures at fighting.

The whole tragedy just showed again that being a champion spoils a good fighter, and keeping out of the ring kills a champion.

Tunney Too Fast

Dempsey never was much shucks against a fighter that kept moving and Tunney did that. He kept moving, mostly backward, but still kept moving. Jack loves them big, anchored and flat-footed. Tunney is none of these. He made a sucker out of our Jack, being made to order for the job.

The first good heavyweight that meets Tunney will beat him. At best, he is one of the better lighter heavyweights, no matter what his weight, Munn, Hanson, Persson—not to say Wills—would swallow him like an oyster. And he is the heavyweight champion today. Anyway, the bookies paid off on him.

Some men can't make a good impression even with a rubber stamp

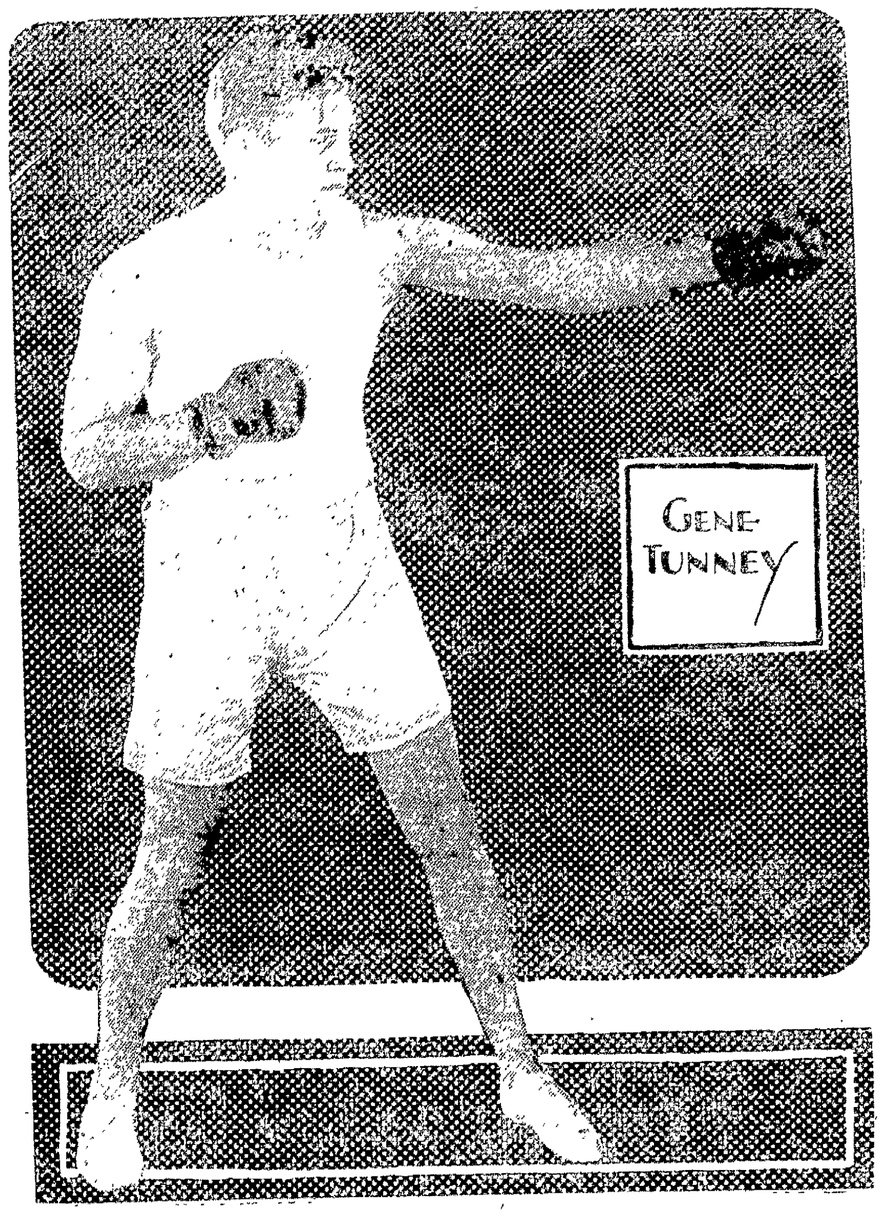
The Winner



"No Alibis To Offer," Asserts Dempsey; Tunney Says His Ambition Realized

"I Was Whipped Fairly and Squarely," Jack

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 24—"No alibis to offer," declared Jack Dempsey today after he was defeated by Gene Tunney.

"I was whipped fairly and squarely. Tunney outmatched me, he outpunched me, he outboxed me and he couldn't do anything else but win," Dempsey said.

"I couldn't get started, nothing worked right with me. I was missing punches by a foot that I used to land on the button. Why I missed them, I don't know—shall I say it was because I was off form, or because Gene was too clever?"

Praises Tunney

"Let's say it was because of Gene's boxing skill, for he did duck and he did side-step and he did block. Several times, it seemed I was under way at last, that the old steam was back and that I could bring down Gene, but I'd just flash and the legs wouldn't carry into fast attacks and fast follow-ups."

Dempsey had nothing but praise for Tunney.

"I think that in meeting Gene Tunney, I met the best man—by far—that I have ever faced in my career," he declared. "He was fast, he was skillful and although his punches didn't drop me, they had enough force to batter my complexion out of shape.

"Gene has been a credit to the game through all the years he has been fighting and the real comfort I have in surrendering my title to him is that the new heavyweight champion is an honor to the game, a fine young American and one who will always uplift boxing."

BACON WILL GO TO OXFORD SATURDAY

Starts Ohio Conference Work in Miami-Wilmington Game; Scholastic League Next

Referee Francis Bacon of this city is planning to officiate at his first Ohio Conference game Saturday at Oxford where Miami plays Wilmington. Mr. Bacon officiated last Saturday at Galion where Crestline lost 19 to 0. Bacon is scheduled to officiate this season in a number of North Central Ohio League games in addition to conference and other college games.

MILWAUKEE FIELDER IS SOLD TO BOSTON BRAVES

Gainesville, Fla., Sept. 23—Lance Richbourg, graduate of the University of Florida and during the last summer a right fielder of the Milwaukee Association team, has been sold to the Boston Braves for $25,000.

After years, summer trousers acquired straps for belts; next demand is for four more pockets when vests are discarded.

In the little town everybody smiles and speaks to you; and everybody demands as a return for this that you behave yourself properly.

RESULTS OF LAST NIGHT'S OPENERS

Pinky Pinkerton of Gene Tunney's team defeated Sergeant Bob Adams, St. Louis, on points in four hard fought rounds.

George Geoffrey of Libertyville, Pa., won decision over Bob Lawson six rounds.

Monte Munn, Lincoln, Neb., knocked out Hope Clements, Camden, N. J. in first of scheduled six rounds.

Jack DeMarco, of Hoboken, N. J., knocked out Joe Stone of New York, in third of scheduled six round bout.

Yale Okun of New York won decision over Marty Burke, New Orleans six rounds.

OFFICIALS WILL ORGANIZE MON.

Bacon's Marion Club Will Have Ten Charter Members

Marion Officials will organize Monday evening at their weekly meeting which is scheduled to be held at the employment office of the Marion Steam Shovel Company, W. Center-st.

Ten sportsmen will be taken into the Marion Officials' Association as charter members. Officers will be elected and efforts will be made to enlist as many local sportsmen and sportswomen as possible in the organization's activities for their mutual benefit.

In addition to officiating at games and contests, members of the club will be called upon frequently to inform public gatherings regarding rules and general information for various games including football, basketball, volleyball, baseball, tennis and other sports.

The local club is being promoted by Francis Bacon, Ohio Conference official and former organizer of the Officials' Club at Dayton which is recognized as one of Ohio's best.

Anyone wishing further information regarding the local organization may call Mr. Bacon at the local plant of the Marion Steam Shovel Company, where he is employed as personnel manager.

It is not half so impressive to claim that it is a "frame-up" as to call it a conspiracy or a plot. It cheapens it.

The half is better than the whole—if you are the one who has to give up.

"I never had any doubt as ... outcome. I was confident ... match was made that I would ... next champion of the world ... confidence increased as my ... progressed. I knew I was ... I was ready to make the fight of ... career.

"In the ring, I was sure of ... every second. Not one of ... punches hurt me. I think I ... the great crowd that I was ... ter.

Concerning Harry Wills, Gene was a bit reticent.

"There is time enough to ... Harry later on," he said.

If you hate people bitterly enough you want to "reform" them. There is very little loving kindness in compulsory uplifts.

SATURDAY SHOOTS AT CRYSTAL CLUB

Starting tomorrow afternoon, the Crystal Way Gun Club will hold weekly shoots on Saturday instead of Wednesday as has been customary this Summer. Shooting will continue until after Thanksgiving, according to announcement made this morning by Manager E. A. Alline at the club north of Marion on the Hillman-Ford road. Shooting will start at 2 o'clock each Saturday.

C., D. & M. MEN ORGANIZE FAST BASKETBALL FIVE

Railway Men Are Scheduling Games with State's Best

Columbus, Delaware and Marion Railway employes have organized a basketball team and are scheduling games with some of the best teams in this section of Ohio. Fourteen men have been signed by Manager E. C. Macken. Freed Phillians has been elected captain and William Davis will be the secretary-treasurer of the outfit. William Martin will serve on the board of control.

Players signed to date are Minard, Phillians, Torrence, Davis, Yazel, Pelter, Waxler, Flannigan, Christman, Larson, Burdge, Kochensperger and Moore.

A number of games will be scheduled within the next few weeks.

The C. D. & M. quintet will specialize in both foreign and home games.

ISALYS ORGANIZE BIG PRO QUINTET

Scheduling Fast American Legion Games for Hard Season

Isalys Dairy basketball team, Central Ohio champions in 1925, is reorganizing this season and announces that it expects to specialize in games with American Legion games. Games are being scheduled with other pro teams everywhere.

Mike Miller is the only new man signed this season by the Isalys. Miller is a Purdue man employed at the local office of the Erie Railroad. He was a first choice All Western Conference guard last year. He started with Purdue exactly three years, during which time he did not score one point. Mike is one of those fellows who simply can't do anything but guard. But he does that with little trouble.

Coach Doug Torrance is working the team into condition and is planning to start the season earlier this year. The Akron Goodyears will be here among the first teams and a return game will be played. The Kenton Red will also be included on this years schedule, according to Manager Marion Hoskin, who is busy scheduling the games.

Robbins Returns

Penry, Fido Robbins, Fred Philhams and Fred Robbins will help do the forwarding work this year. The team will be glad to have Robbins back in uniform. He was compelled to cut last season short on account of appendicitis.

Newt Mauvid and K. O. Kistler have been selected guards of the point work.

Miller, Hipp Applegate, Ben Robbins and John Pitcher will keep the opponents from getting too much.

Coach Torrance is well pleased with the first showing of the team and it is likely that they will be ready for the first game long before Thanksgiving.

SWINEHART NINE RETURNS SUNDAY

Akron Champions Coming To Decide Series with Athletics

Sunday's game between the Marion Athletics and the Swinehart Tires of Akron will see at least one new face in the Akron line-up. Tidyman, the regular shortstop of the team, who was left at home ill when the team played here last Sunday, will be back on the job. This will send Rudy, who played such a good game at short, back to his regular position in left field. Frank Washburn, local representative of the Swinehart factory, who has seen the team in several of its games this summer, says: "Anyone who thinks that Centerfielder Harris is a ball hawk should see Rudy when he is in his regular position." If Rudy covers nearly as much ground as Harris, Akron surely is possessed of a fast outfield.

Ruttman Goes to School

Ruttman, who played second base for Akron last Sunday, has left the team and gone back to school. His position will be filled by a new man on the Akron squad, said to be fast.

Tedrow Breaks Ankle

M. R. Tedrow, the catcher who showed his gameness last Sunday by catching an inning after turning his ankle by sliding into second base, submitted to an X Ray examination after his return to his home, which showed that his ankle was broken. His place will likely be filled by Pitchman, the hocky Dutchman who batted out two home runs in the doubleheader last week.

No change are contemplated by Manager Francis Bacon in the Marion lineup. He is loath to change his winning combination for the inter city tournament soon to be held, but thinks that the local Marion fans who have followed the team all season are entitled to a look at some of the players who have made names for themselves in the fast Ohio leagues this season. He expects to be able to make an announcement prior to next Sunday's game that will be of interest to Marion lovers of the national pastime.

Sunday's game will be called promptly at 2:30. There will be no preliminary game.

by defeating Crestline 19 to 0

Galion's line-up in their initial game was as follows: Hershiser, le; McClure, lt; Phipps lg; Wiener c; Keefly, rg; Duebig, rt; Yeager, re; Kersh lh; B. Kersh, rh; Catshall (c) f, and Zinn, q. Substitutions used in the opening game were Mackey, Cass, Coyle and McElroy.

It is expected that Coach Eaton will start about the same line-up against Coach Harry J. Barnhart's eleven from McDowell High.

R. Zinn Stars

R. Zinn did most of the scoring last week for Galion, running 60 yards for his second touchdown in the second period.

Columbus North at Mansfield

Coach J. Russell Murphy and his Mansfield eleven are expected to have a hot time with Columbus North in the game at Mansfield where the Red and White will be dedicating their new $75,000 stadium. Marion boosters will also attend this game with interest.

In their opening game last Saturday at Mansfield the Red and White had little trouble downing Danville, 17 to 0.

Delaware Playing Today

Delaware is playing their opening game this afternoon with Marysville.

Shelby Loses

Shelby High lost their opening game 6 to 0 to Alumni and Coach Paul Curry was somewhat surprised.

League Games Next Week

Next week league games only will be played when Mansfield goes to Bucyrus, Ashland goes to Delaware, and Galion comes here.

REDS BATTLE 15 INNING TIE WITH PHILA NATIONALS

Playing Two Games Today and Cincinnati Must Win

New York, Sept. 24—If Cincinnati was only one of the double header with Philadelphia this afternoon St. Louis can clinch the National League pennant by beating the Giants. Should the Reds win all their remaining games, including the contest with St. Louis on Sunday, St. Louis would be forced to defeat the Giants both today and tomorrow in order to better than the Cincinnati.

The Reds had a close call yesterday, barely managing to hold the Phillies to a 15 inning tie. This game will be played off in the afternoon double header.

The Yankees play the St. Louis Browns today, while Cleveland engages the Athletics in a double-header. New York needs three victories out of four to clinch the pennant, providing Cleveland makes a clean sweep.

St. Louis led the Reds by two and one half games this morning while the Indians nailed the Yankees by two games.

The Reds could no do better than tie the Phillies after battling 15 innings. The score was six to six with Carlson holding his own against Rixey and Donohue. An error by Roush let two men score.

The Braves drove another nail in Pittsburgh's coffin as Edwards had the better of Kramer in a 2 to 1 pitching duel. Rhyne made a costly error.

All American League clubs were idle.

Discusses Changes In

INTERPRETATIONS BY LOCAL MAN

New Football Rules

By FRANCIS BACON
(Ohio Conference Official)

Changes in the official football rules are not numerous this year nor are they of major importance so far as their effect upon the character of the game is concerned. Following are the more important changes:

Kick-off Out of Bounds

Perhaps the first change which the spectator will observe is that if the kickoff is touched upon the field of play and then rolls out of bounds not having been in the actual possession of a player, it must be kicked off again. If this happens a second time on the same kickoff the ball shall be brought to the forty yard line of the team which did not kick it and placed, equidistant from the side lines, for scrimmage.

It has long been a rule that if the ball is kicked across the side line untouched it shall be kicked off again. Prior to 1926, however, if the kickoff was touched upon the field of play (all players on side) and then went out of bounds, it belonged to the player who first obtained possession of the ball.

Play Confined to Field

Many players have been injured off the field of play scrambling and struggling to gain possession of the ball after it has gone out of bounds. Appreciating that the same was often disastrous to the players, no pleasure to the spectators and a detriment of the game, the rules committee so altered the rules as to confine the game in every respect to the field of play and the end zones. The spectator may therefore appreciate that as a blanket ruling, the ball becomes dead whenever it crosses the side line, side line extended or the end line.

Piling and Crawling Curbed

The rules committee has so altered the definitions of both crawling and piling up that either may be called as a foul before the ball is actually blown dead by the referee.

Penalties on Passing

During the last nine months we have read much comment favorable and unfavorable, by coaches upon the change in the rules by which penalties are given for more than one incompleted forward pass in any series of the four downs. The spectator, the majority of coaches and most players do not in reality understand the detailed provisions of this change.

Kick Following Safety

For several years the ball was put in play by a scrimmage on the thirties yard line following a safety. This led to considerable dissatisfaction in some games last year, in that it enabled teams to make one or more intentional safeties rather than allow the opponents to secure possession of the ball in its territory to score a touchdown.

OHIO GRIDIRONS OPEN SATURDAY

Twenty-Four College Teams Prepare for First Clashes

Twenty-four Ohio football teams began final preparations this week for the opening of their gridiron seasons Saturday. Two Ohio conference games are scheduled; the others are mostly preliminary contests for the nine-week season ahead. Four of the squads play out of state elevens.

The Saturday schedule follows:

Kentucky Wesleyan vs. Cincinnati at Cincinnati.

Albion (Mich.) vs. Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware.

Concord State vs. Rio Grande at Welch, W. Va.

Slippery Rock, (Pa.) vs. Mt. Union at Alliance.

Denison vs. Capitol at Granville.

Miami vs. Wilmington at Oxford.

St. Xavier vs. Cedarville at Cincinnati.

Muskingum vs. Ashland at New Concord.

Dayton vs. Bowling Green at Dayton.

Wittenberg vs. Kent State Normal at Springfield.

Otterbein vs. Findlay at Westerville.

Case vs. Heidelberg at Cleveland.

Wallace vs. Oberlin at Oberlin.

Akron vs. Defiance at Akron.

HAWAIIAN HALF AT DAYTON

August Cabrinha will be the only regular half-back on the University of Dayton team this fall. The Hawaiian flash will best be remembered by his snagging of a forward pass and thrilling 63 yard run on the opening play of Dayton's game against Haskell Indians last November when he scored the victory-winning touchdown. Cabrinha has completely recovered from an injury sustained in track work last spring.

Justice is of Heaven and immutable, but men make the laws.

1923 Sept. 14—Jack Dempsey knocked out Luis Firpo of Argentina in 2 rounds at New York.

Football Fans See Albion Champions Work Out For Big Game At Delaware Saturday

The Michigan team is a veteran aggregation, eight of the first string players having been members of last year's Michigan Intercollegiate champs. From end to end the line weighs 200 pounds according to Rube Betchtel, coach of Albion and former Baldwin-Wallace mentor.

Albion's backfield is said to be a triple threat affair. Each of the quartet is claimed to be a passer, kicker and expert ball toter. With this combination—a heavy line and a fast, light backfield—Albion should give the untried Wesleyan team a run for its money Saturday.

Delaware is Weak

According to word from Delaware, Wesleyan will be hard hit through injuries Saturday. Only four of last year's regulars are back this year and two of them probably will not start the game. Capt. Ray Bowers, guard, had an attack of flu this week and may not be in condition to start. Eddie Bleckle halfback, has been nursing an injury and he, too, likely will view the greater part of the game from the sidelines.

Added to that, Gris Campbell, who was counted upon to hold down one of the wing positions, has a broken thumb and likely will be out until the State game at Columbus in two weeks. Several other members of the squad have injuries but they are not on the first eleven.

Wesleyan Will Be Watched

Lamme and Kyle likely will start at the ends for the Battling Bishops; Tilton and Kofsky will be seen at the tackles, Abbey and probably Lafferty at the guards and Blair at center. Bob Holwig, despite an injured optic, will start the contest at quarterback with either Myers or Shaffer at full. Frost, Swaim, Halliday, Glance, Phillips and Witters Coach Gauthier will choose his halfbacks.

Wesleyan's showing against Albion is expected to give its followers an idea of its chances of copping another Ohio conference title this fall.

PIMPLES ITCHED AND BURNED

On Arms, Shoulders and Face. Healed by Cuticura.

"My arms, shoulders and face were covered with pimples. Some were large and some small and festered. They itched and burned, were very severely, and were sore. When I got worse I answered me more. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample, and after using them I bought more Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." CLAIMS FOR PLANT JUICE TOO MILD, SAYS LATHOUSE

Columbus Man Says This Great Medicine Has Been Worth $50 A Bottle To Him.

"The way this Dillingham's Plant Juice rid me of my troubles gave me the surprise of my life and it's been worth $50 a bottle to me," said W. S. Lathouse, 1587 N. Fourth St., Columbus, Ohio.

"Here several years ago I was laid up as the result of an accident and ever since had suffered from internal troubles. But when I got started on Plant Juice it worked just like magic.

"All that gas and biliousness and hurting are gone, my bowels and liver are active again and I actually feel like a new man from head to foot. I eat hearty now and my appetite is so good that I'm always hungry before mealtime. I sleep like a top and never know what it is to have a headache.

"They don't claim half enough for this medicine, and if anyone wants to know more about it, just send them to me."

JIM DUGAN

-o- The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

"BOLLARION", the new novel by Rafael Sabatini, was written for the lover of war, romance and adventure. Bollarion, which is the name of the powerful character about whom the narrative is woven, is truly a hero, reminding us somewhat of a Beowulf or even a Hercules.

Bellarion is the product of a convent. Having strayed from his parents, of whom he knew no more than the mere knowledge of their existence, during a siege, he was rescued by a soldier and placed in the convent, where he remained content until manhood. Finally however, Bellarion sets out in quest of knowledge, and, although he is barely aware of the fact himself, conquest. His first mishap, notable since it is his first contact with a cold and unrelenting world, occurs when he places his trust in a friar, who later turns out to be a bandit, robs him of all he has and, since the simple community is a believer in the "birds of a feather" theory, gets him "in dutch".

KEEN wits and the intellect that is destined to prove his salvation during a life of constant danger, he first exercised in this instance in manufacturing his escape. He has learned one valuable lesson, that despite the teaching of the simple-minded and man-loving monks, wolves often masquerade in sheep's clothing. A series of numerous adventured follow, in which excitement and suspense are maintained to the nth degree.

Finally, through those same adventures we find him and ourselves already entangled in the plot of the story. A beautiful princess is attempting to save the throne that rightfully belonged to her younger brother, from a designing, wicked, and usurping uncle. This she is attempting to accomplish through a band of men, ambitious for wealth and power. Bellarion, as becomes the hero of any successful fairy story, chooses the garden of this same beautiful princess as a shelter from a band of pursuers. She, who is called the Princess Valeria, shields him, thinking he is a messenger from her fellow conspirators. In attempting to discover the true reason he enters her garden, she reveals her need of a messenger and this capacity, in return for befriending him, he desired to fill. And then, one might say, the plot thickens."

BELLARION cleverly leads the conspirators to believe he has been told more of the affair than he really has, and thus does he learn the nature of Valeria's secret. He also discovers that some of the conspirators are plotting to play Vdieria false and gain their end through bloodshed. He kills (his first true sin) the ringleader of the latter plot. He continues to render Valeria such valuable services although with the murder of the one of her conspirators, whom she had thought true to her, she believes Bellarion to be a trickster, playing both sides for the highest gain. Throughout the story she continues to regard him thus, despite his loyalty and affection (which finally grows into love) for her. He gains all his ends by sheer use of wits, and through cleverly conceived tricks. To Valeria he seems to go at the thing in the wrong way and finally she deems him a mere gambler and trickster, ambitious of personal pain.

Another interesting side of the story is when Bellarion confronts Fucino of Cane, a mighty war lord, whose son Bellarion claims himself to be. This falsehood he had conceived when in a "tight place," so tight that only a most powerful name could save him. The name served its purpose and afterwards clung. Fucino accepts Bellarion and so admiring is he of the youth's pluck and wits in assuming the name, that he gifts him his name, and accepts Bellarion as son. Bellarion repays the duke by helping him accomplish his ends, which seem to be of preventing a kingdom for an ancestral and usurpative duke, who nevertheless is a master. The preservation of the kingdom lands Fucino into many wars. Bellarion riding by his side and assisting in the plans of campaign. Bellarion soon proves himself invaluable by showing a remarkable ability for waging campaigns and baffling the enemy. He although not cut out for a combative fighter but merely a leader manages in the hero becomes successful by winning many wars through strategy.

Meanwhile Fucino's wife, Beatrice, who is very young and beautiful, and even more Bellarion's senior, has succumbed to Bellarion's charms. The latter shows no worth by ignoring her attentions.

FINALLY Fucino and the Princess Valeria unite forces, and Bellarion serves both. His military tactics differ greatly from those of the handsome Carmagnola, and since the Princess Valeria places her trust in the latter, Bellarion permits them to follow Carmagnola's plan of campaign, meet defeat, and be rescued at the last minute by a carefully worked out plan of Bellarion's. From this moment Valeria is more wont to trust him and with other forces but excellently executed battles he shows her his true worth. Finally when he is wounded and returns to her quarters with Fucino and Beatrice, having regained for them their kingdom, the confidence in him and for beautiful Beatrice and he and succumbed before long to her wiles and success for close.

Fucino, however, while ill of the gout is poisoned by an attending physician in the employ of the wicked and ungrateful duke. Bellarion, in true heroic fashion, leaves to settle matters but very opportunely finds the duke already murdered, so saving him from another stain on his gallant hands, finishes seeing her efforts to attract Bellarion failure, and being really truly in love of wealth and influence and power sees, meeting, through many clever manoeuvering on Bellarion's part the Duke.

One characteristic of the book and an unpleasant one are the vivid and horrible methods of torture the characters employ, which are minutely, too minutely described. However, such ideas are typical of the fifteenth century, the time in which the story is laid.

Bellarion is the true hero type, although Sabatini humanizes him by drawing him as somewhat of a coward when it comes to personal combat. He does not seem entirely superhuman. Valeria, too, is surely the typical heroine beautiful, commanding and religious, however her tenderness serves to humanize her. The love scene with which the story closes is portrayed in a modern and wholesome fashion.

What Sabatini has accomplished with the writing of this book is a good, interesting and well-written story. The more interesting for being somewhat of a revival of the old romantic tales.

Hard work was the key to success in America, he was told. Then Frank could succeed because he glorified in work. So he obtained a $100 by scraping and scrimping.

He came to America. New York was too noisy and too big. He heard of Chattanooga. The name of the town was peculiar so he decided to take a chance.

His first job was to earn a meal. He washed the windows of a restaurant. He liked the work and decided to become the best window washer in the city.

He did. Eventually Frank was capable of washing 125 to 150 windows a day. He began to lay away a little money. People learned they could depend on him.

"I have seen the big moving pictures of life by washing windows. I see big business deals, bankers ... banks and wives. The ... through lending money, the troubles of ... the windows are of the ... But now that Frank is rich, he still keeps washing windows.

Largest Road Building Bill In Central Ohio In Three Years Nearing Completion

Grover C. Snyder, State Highway Department Division Engineer, with Headquarters in Marion, in Charge of Work; Road To Be Open This Winter

Final work on the largest road building in progress in Central Ohio under the in porgress in Central Ohio under the direction of Grover C. Snyder, division engineer of the State Highway Department whose office is in the Barnhart Building on E. Center-st. While all of the improvements are not likely to be completed before winter weather forces a suspension of operations, plans are under way to have the work in such shape that none of the roads will be closed to traffic during the winter months, Mr. Snyder states. This is in accordance with a policy adopted by the Highway Department throughout the entire state, the aim being to provide every possible convenience for the public.

County Work

Marion County figures extensively in this year's road building schedule, most of the improvements here totalling more than $450,000. As a consequence of this construction work, it has been necessary to close some of the county's main highways during the summer. The Marion County work is moving along nicely, however, and most of it is likely to be completed before winter, according to present indications. Work is still in progress on six large construction contracts in the county.

The Highway Department is putting forth every possible effort to handle the detour problem so that traffic will not be seriously handicapped, Mr. Snyder says. As the consequence of a clause now inserted in all contracts, detours must be kept in the best of condition and this feature has eliminated some of the most serious difficulties experienced in former years.

Time Limit

Contracts also specify a time limit for the use of detours, but it is impossible to reduce the mile rapidly due to the fact that weather and other unlooked for obstacles frequently delay construction.

Plans for next year's improvement work in this section of Ohio as well as other parts of the state are seriously handicapped by the present system of financing, Mr. Snyder states. State funds available for highway work are dependent upon action of the legislature under the present plan and for that reason it is impossible to map out schedule satisfactorily. For this reason, the Highway Department and Governor Donahey are advocating a return of the half mill state road levy which was abolished several years ago. The levy is opposed, however, by the Republican candidate for governor, farm bureaus, the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards and other state organizations. The question is likely to be one of the outstanding issues in the fall campaign.

The district in which Mr. Snyder has charge of highway work consists of Marion, Morrow, Union, Delaware, Franklin, Madison, Pickaway and Fayette counties. The state is divided into 11 districts.

NEW YORK HAS THREE CABLE LINES TO MIAMI

New York now has three channels of communication to Miami City and cable connections with Miami Beach through Key West, it was announced today. Atlanta has five channels to Miami.

Upon indication that urgent communications were slowing up in the storm district the Western Union Telegraph Co. immediately sent seven gangs to Florida and five to Mobile. The 200 repair men in Florida when the storm broke now totals 560 under the direct supervision of the vice president of the Western Union plant.

say I would give them to you," she said. And just then the Lost Bag of Tripe came around the corner with three apple pies he had snuck through the window from the other side whilst her and Mush were talking to us. And when Mush went to chase us we soaked him in the face with one. They were sure good. He would make a good movie actor.

Daily Bedtime Story

BY HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

Hopping one day through a part of the woods where he had not been looking for adventures in a long time, Uncle Wiggily happened to remember that his wife had told him to go to the five and ten cent store to get some lead pencils.

"Are you going to have them boiled or fried?" asked the bunny gentleman.

"Neither," answered his wife. "You shouldn't be trying to make jokes all the while. I want the lead pencils for our little rabbit children to use in writing out their lessons for the Lady Music Teacher in the Hollow Stump School."

"Oh, I'm glad you told me!" said Uncle Wiggily, and he hopped away, fast intending to get the lead pencils at the store. But he forgot all about them until he reached this part of the woods.

It was quite dark beneath the trees, so dark and black, in fact, that it made the rabbit gentleman think of black lead and this, naturally, caused him to remember the pencils.

"I'll hop to the store and get them but so I have another spell of forgetfulness," said the bunny to himself. "Then I'll come back here and perhaps I shall find an adventure."

As Uncle Wiggily hopped away he heard a voice calling:

"Help! Help! Help!"

"Ha! Now I am sure I shall find an adventure here in the deep, dark woods," said Mr. Longears. "Some one needs help! That always means an adventure!" So he called aloud:

"Here as four! I shall soon be back to help you!"

"All right," answered a sad and sorrowful voice. "But please be as quick as you can, for I have lost my legs!"

"Oh, I just know this is going to be a most wonderful adventure!" exclaimed the bunny uncle, and he hopped double quick to the store where he bought many lead pencils, for the five and ten little bunny boys and rabbits who went to the Hollow Stump School.

With his pockets filled with lead pencils Uncle Wiggily hopped back to the deep dark place in the woods and said:

"Now I am ready to help. Who are you and what is the matter?"

"I am Jumping Jack and I have lost my legs" was the answer, and, seated on a log, the rabbit gentleman saw a jumping Jack toy with no legs. Jack had a wooden head, body and arms, but no legs.

"What become of your legs?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Oh, I wanted to be smart and show my brother, Jim, how far I could jump—much farther than he," sighed Jack. "So, I jumped and jumped until I wore my legs off, and now I have none! Can you help me?"

At first Uncle Wiggily did not think he could, but he happened to remember that Jack's legs were made of wood as were the lead pencils he had in his pockets, so the bunny said:

"If you do not mind a pair of legs with centers of black lead, I can fix you up."

"Please fix me up, then," begged Jack, and in a trice, which is a very short time, Uncle Wiggily had fastened two of his extra lead pencils on Jack's body and the wooden man had legs as good as before.

"Hurray!" he cried, kicking out with them. "Now I can jump back home to my brother Jim," and away he started.

But he had not gone far before, all at once, out of the bushes came slinking the sly weasel, who was starting to whiten his coat of fur as he always does in winter.

"Gurra! Gurra!" said the sly Weasel. "I think I will get me up and nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears!" and away the sly chap started.

"You'll do nothing of the sort!" cried Jumping Jack. With that he began to kick out with the new legs the bunny gentleman had made for him. The Jack kicked the Weasel and as the pencil legs had black lead inside them, they began making black marks on the white coat of the sly chap.

"Oh, you're marking me all up!" squealed the Weasel. "You're making my nice new winter coat all black!"

"Then don't try to nibble my friend Uncle Wiggily!" said Jumping Jack, and the Weasel didn't. Afraid of having his white fur soiled, the bad chap crept back to his den.

As for Jack, he jumped and jumped on his new lead pencil legs until he was safe home once more. And he thanked the bunny very much.

So if the rubber plant doesn't stretch its neck out of the window to see if it's raining and tickle the door knob, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Jim's arms.

Wicked as the old say this hopeless old world is, they want to stay in it.

HARDING HIGH SCHOOL HOLDS FIRST ASSEMBLY

Football, School Publication and Music Discussed by Student Body

Football, Quiver Junior and music were the subjects taken by various speakers at the first general assembly of the school year at Harding High School this morning.

Practically the same program took place in both East and West Halls. Paul Sprout, football coach at Harding High School gave an interesting talk on the value of athletics to the school. He also announced that bleachers had been obtained for the home field at the fairground.

Allen Compton, recently appointed basketball coach and assistant football coach, also gave a short address. Captain Carrol Born of the eleven followed the coaches addresses and urged the students to attend the initial game of the season with Central High School of Columbus, next Saturday afternoon.

Shade Talks

Ervin H. Shade, faculty financial manager gave a talk on the ticket sale for the football season.

Oscar Hitteurauch, editor of the Quiver Junior, Harding High School's weekly newspaper, explained the value of the paper to the school. He also gave the results of the subscription contest which ended today.

Howard Temple, music supervisor of Marion Schools spoke in both halls concerning the subject of music in the high school for the coming year.

Supt. Jesse H. Mason was in charge of the program in West Hall and Prin. K. H. Marshall was in charge in East Hall.

Miss Beatrice Braden, 18, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Braden, 260 Hane-av, died early today at Franklin Hospital, Columbus, after a long illness of tuberculosis.

Miss Braden was born in Meeker, Oct. 19, 1908. Until recently she had been a student at Harding High School. Last year Miss Braden was a junior at Caledonia High School.

Her illness became worse last December and she was taken to Franklin Hospital, March 18, this year.

No funeral arrangements have been made.

PROFESSIONAL DEALERS DOMINATE STOCK MART

Irregularity in Prices Result from Manipulation of Wall-St Speculators

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks firm; industrial stocks irregular; domestic bonds steady; foreign bonds inactive; call money 5 per cent; grain irregular; copper, steady; oil irregular; cotton fairly steady; rubber steady; sugar steady; pig iron firm; foreign exchange steady.

New York, Sept. 24—Industrial stocks were irregular today in a dull and featureless session of the market, dominated almost exclusively by the professionals. Occasional spurts of activity in the best known stocks, accompanied by the brisk running up of price, represented the driving of the professional shorts to cover, while the prompt reactionary movement which followed signified the putting out of new short lines in these or other stocks.

While money market developments were exactly in line with expectations, the bulls professed to have won a signal advantage in the failure of the New York Reserve Bank to advance its rediscount rate, and the decided improvement in the general position of the reserve system as disclosed in its weekly statement.

They consequently marked up the prices of the active stocks a point or more in the first period, but plenty of stock was for sale at the higher price levels, and values quickly receded.

The railroad shares essayed a new forward movement under the lead of Chesapeake & Ohio and New York, Chicago & St. Louis.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Homegrown grapes were plentiful in many Marion retail produce markets today. All of the fruit houses sold the supplies in pound allotments and a few were selling by the bushel. Basket sales were also numerous.

In most of the larger markets $2 was asked on bushel lots. Several prices were found on the smaller quantities. Baskets sold at 25 cents each and a general price on the pound was five cents.

Tokay or imported grapes were selling at two pounds for 25 cents. California seedless and white grapes are almost extinct in the local markets.

Peaches Slump

Peaches slumped to the lowest price of the year today. The price asked was $1.65 a bushel, or ten cents below the lowest quotation found yesterday. Some dealers were selling high grade peaches at $2.25 a bushel. The grade lowered today was slightly inferior to the usual display. The general price remained at $1.75 a bushel.

A new shipment of grapefruit lowered the price. Today grapefruit sold at 10 cents. The last shipment was marked at 15 cents and higher.

A new shipment of honeydew melons was also announced in Marion today. The usual price was the same as that on the display yesterday, 40 cents each.

Oysters were scarce and sold at the same price that was announced on their appearnce last week, 75 cents a quart.

SIXTY-TWO ARE NAMED IN SUIT OVER PROPERTY

Partition Action Brought by Mrs. Ida M. Rapp, 329 E. Center-St

Naming 62 persons as defendants, Mrs. Ida M. Rapp, 329 E. Center-st, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for the partition of two Marion lots, located on E. Church st.

The properties were formerly owned by Mrs. Sarah E. Harvey, late of Marion, and Mrs. Rapp claims a one-fifth interest in the premises being a sister of the deceased.

Heirs to the properties in question number 62 persons, according to the petition of Mrs. Rapp. She asks that the properties be sold and that she receives her portion.

No Assignment

No cases, with the exception of the Aller trial on Sept. 29, have yet been assigned the petit jury of Marion County during the September term of court. Assignment of cases is usually made before the first calling of the jury but due to many political campaigns, little interest is being shown in cases to come [illegible] trial, according to Court Reporter M. Davidson.

Will Probated

The will of Mr. Sarah [illegible] late of Pleasant, was filed [illegible] in Probate Court today. Jesse L. Roberts and Ro. Hoffman of Richwood are executors of the estate of Mrs. King.

No Date Set

A date for the arraignment of L. L. Aller, LaRue contractor indicted on charges of fraud in connection with a public work, has not yet been set. The trial of Aller, if he plead not guilty when arraigned, is set for Wednesday, Sept. 29, according to Jail reports.

Get License

A marriage license was today issued to Marvin J. Clark, 21, Elyria, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Clark, and Miss Mildred Ruthetta Nash, 23, Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Nash.

Named Administrator

Ralph B. Geary of this city, was appointed administrator of the estate of Joseph M. Hepp, of Cleveland, who was killed in an automobile crash on the Bucyrus-pk. Monday night. Mr. Geary and Mr. Hepp were associated in the Marion Studebaker Co.

Prisoner Released

William Holmes of Columbus, arrested several weeks ago on charges of intoxication and committed to County Jail when unable to pay a fine of $50 and costs assessed by Justice M. O. Stoll, was yesterday released from imprisonment [illegible] settled the remainder of [illegible] of the case.

Two Chosen

Boyce A. Kress and Victor H. Kress, both of Marion, have been appointed by Judge L. B. McNal as administrators of the estate of Caroline S. Kress, late of this city.

DEATH LIST IN FLORIDA STILL IS ABOVE 400

Hundreds of Injured in Serious Condition; 126 Dead in Moorehaven

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 24 — The death list in the southern Florida hurricane today still wavered slightly above 400 known dead, 2,000 injured, and property damage variously estimated to be between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Hundreds of the injured are in serious condition, but the death list is not expected to be greatly increased. Unreported deaths may swell the list to six hundred victims.

From Moorehaven, where 126 are admittedly dead, word came today to International News Service that at least another hundred may have perished.

Miami, with its environs, lists its dead at 109 and this figure is certain to be increased, at least slightly. Fort Lauderdale is known to have more than a score dead, Hialeah probably 30 more, Clewiston, Dania, Fulford, Hollywood and other towns will add at least 150 more victims and numerous small towns are reporting additional dead daily.

DRY CZAR ACTS TO PUT BURDEN ON LOCAL MEN

Andrews Would Enlist City and County Officers; Shows Revenue That Will Follow

Washington, Sept. 24—Determined to shift to states the burden of breaking up prohibition violations, Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, dry czar, today announced a plan to enlist thousands of county and city officers in the dry forces.

Forced by a cyclone of opposition to abandon his plan to clothe sheriffs and city police with federal powers, Andrews moved to empower the same forces under state laws.

Gives Plan Details

He instructed the twenty-two prohibition administrators, in conference here, how to line up county authorities upon whose co-operation the plan is dependent for success. Federal agents would co-operate with officers appointed by counties.

Immense savings to taxpayers, effected through the pouring of heavy fines into county treasuries, is the lure.

Started recently in a single California county, this plan has been extended to forty counties, Andrews disclosed.

In the past six months these counties have swelled revenues by $434,000 through fine collections. Expenses in the same period were only $51,000.

"Punishment is quick and certain under this plan, as it has been applied in California," Andrews said.

"Raids there have usually been made at night. Arrangements have been made with the local judge to hold court at any hour. Offenders are tried and sentenced the same night.

Tells of Need

"Some plan like this must be employed to take the burden of local enforcement off the shoulders of the federal government, leaving it free to cope with large-scale commercial violations."

Enforcement funds totaling $9,458,000 were allocated among administrators by Andrews today for the year which began July 1.

Ira L. Lee of Newark will be appointed deputy prohibition administrator for New Jersey. He will relieve Capt. Jesse Thompson, who will be transferred to Los Angeles on account of his health.
